KILLED IN DUEL OVER WOMAN

WIFE DENIES SHE "INTERFERED" IN HUSBAND'S STORE

Mrs. Frederick Mayor, whose husband objects to her presence in his place of business, and her two children, Ilene, aged 7, and Alfred, aged 9.

Mrs. Elsie Mayor of No. 34 Eliot street, whose husband, Frederic Mayor, has asked the court for an injunction to restrain her from entering what he declares in his place of business at No. 54 Eliot street, admitted today that she broke the glass door at No. 54, but she maintained that she went there to get her seven-year-old daughter, Ilene.

Mrs. Mayor also declared that the embroidery business at No. 54 is hers.

Mrs. Myor is now working for a furrier on Boylston street. She has the little girl at her home at No. 34. Another child, nine years old, Alfred, is with the father. Mrs. Mayor said today:

"Friday noon my husband secured the children as they were coming from school. I went to get Ilene and took her home with me. Even if I did break the glass in the door it was my right to try to get in to my own place of business.

"The lace business which my husband says is his I started and built up. In fact, until a recent date everything was in my name. Boston banks contained checks signed by me instead of by my husband, because I was the owner of the business.

"Finally he made me sign documents which took certain rights from me. I went with him to City Hall and there withdrew my 'Married woman papers.

"Statement of my interfering with his business are not correct because the business is mine. But he never allowed me to keep the money or retain anything for my own expenses. I have always had to go to him for what I needed."

There will be a hearing tomorrow on Mayor's petition for an injunction.

WOMAN BURNED TO DEATH IN TEWKSBURY

Mrs. Elizabeth A. Tierney, aged y-one, of No. 50 Elm street, Somerle, was burned to death early today a fire which destroyed her Summer np at Tewksbury.

Constable John Cooper found the arred body in the ruins. The aparance of the body gave rise to the ory that the woman had been mur-red, but Medical Examiner J. V. igs of Lowell said marks on the ill were caused by fire and that ath was undoubtedly due to accintal burning.

Mrs. Tierney went from Somerville t night to close the camp for the nter. Men passing about 12.30 saw mes issuing from the cottage. They empted to force an entrance, but re driven back by the flames. aring no outcry, they presumed camp was empty.

The camp was a large one-room ucture, with an open fireplace. It believed a spark from the fireplace arted the fire and that Mrs. Tierney s burned while she slept. She leaves e son, Joseph, and two daughters, and Helen, all of Somerville.

Mayor Increases Reward for Firebug

MANY LOST IN GULF STORM

PENETRATE SECOND LINE

BERLIN, Sept. 30 (By Wireless) — Today's report from the General Staff admits that French troops have inflicted reverses upon the Germans in the western theatre of war. The French have penetrated the German lines, it states, and have also captured Hill No. 191, near Massiges, in the Champagne region.

Mining operations by the Germans against the British troops are proceeding successfully, however. South of Ypres positions held by two companies of English troops were blown up.

PARIS, Sept. 30.—French troops have penetrated the Germans' second line of defence in Champagne, the War Office announced today. The German line has been broken west of the Navarian farm. The progress of the French troops is being aided by the "curtains of fire" formed by the artillery massed before the enemy.

The communique issued by the War Office follows:

"The activities of the enemy in the Artois district were confined to a very violent bombardment of our new positions to the east of Souchez.

"In Champagne we have gained a foothold at numerous points in the trenches constituting the second position of German defence to the west of the hill of Tahure and to the west of the Navarian farm. At the latter point certain parts of our troops broke the German line and resolutely advanced farther, but their progress could not be maintained because of the heavy artillery fire and very violent firing on their flank. Our troops hold firmly the captured points in the second line of the enemy.

"To the south of Ripont we have enlarged and completed the conquest of the first German position by capturing an important point of support

$200 REWARD

The AMERICAN will pay One Hundred Dollars reward for information furnished to the AMERICAN which will result in the arrest and conviction of the so-called Dorchester "firebug."

The City of Boston through Mayor Curley also offers a reward of $100 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the firebug.

This person has already set at least eight fires in Dorchester within the past six months, two of which resulted in the destruction of thousands of dollars worth of property during the past three weeks.

Persons who have information should communicate at once with the City Editor of the AMERICAN (telephone Main 5180). All information will be held in the strictest confidence.

$200 REWARD

$200 TO CAPTOR OF DORCHESTER INCENDIARY

Mayor Curley today joined in the AMERICAN'S efforts to cause the arrest of the Dorchester firebug by offering a reward on behalf of the city of $100 for the firebug's arrest and conviction in addition to the $100 offered by the AMERICAN.

For the ninth time within the past six months, the Dorchester "firebug" was again on the job today. At the usual hour, just before 4 o'clock, fire was discovered in the upper part of a two-and-a-half-story wooden dwelling under construction at No. 38 Bicknell street.

When the alarm was sounded from Box No. 371, the Dorchester firemen with visions of another "firebug" made record time getting to the scene. This latest fire is located in the Harvard street section of Dorchester, about a mile away from the last two incendiary fires which have terrorized Dorchester.

Persons from neighboring houses, in the thickly settled district, flocked to the streets in hastily donned clothes, alarmed with the memories of the recent fires.

The building which was fired today

TRAINS ARE LOST IN STORM

By International News Service.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 30.—The West Indian hurricane which hit the Central Gulf coast yesterday and was today ripping its way northward through the Mississippi valley at an 180-mile clip, has taken a toll of approximately twenty dead and scores of injured, and has inflicted property damage of at least $1,500,000 according to advices reaching here through railroad sources, telegraph and telephone.

Much damage was done to unpicked cotton in the rich cotton fields of the Delta. The storm was central today in the vicinity of Vicksburg, where the wind was blowing forty miles an hour and increasing in violence. It was accompanied by a heavy rainfall.

As far as known here the greatest damage was done in New Orleans and along the gulf coast and inland through the Lake Pontchartrain district of Louisiana.

The number of dead in New Orleans is ten, as far as known.

The Sunset limited, the crack coast train of the South Pacific, was lost somewhere west of Lockport, La. It was due in New Orleans yesterday at 11 a. m. Every effort is being made to locate it.

All towns inland from the gulf for fifty miles were badly damaged and cotton remaining unpicked was blown from the bolls. One of the estimates of the property damage made by a railroad official was $5,000,000.

From Brookhaven, Miss., came a report that an unidentified three-masted schooner was battered to pieces off Cat Island, near Gulfport.

A New Orleans and Chicago train over the Ilinois Central, leaving New Orleans last night, was marooned south of McComb City, and came through after several hours delay. Part of the track was washed away.

Two trains on the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, one of them the New York-New Orleans limited, which left Montgomery, Ala., yesterday for New Orleans, have not yet reached Mobile.

DOPING OUT THE WORLD'S SERIES

by HUGH S. FULLERTON

"DOPE" SHOWS HOW PASKERT IS OUTCLASSED BY OUR SPEAKER

	Value in Offence	Value in Defence	Value in Season	Value in Series
Speaker.........	903	576	829	807
Paskert.........	826	528	671	615

This is the fourth of a series of articles on the World's Series by Hugh Fullerton, the famous baseball statistician and "dopester." Mr. Fullerton is recognized as one of the leading authorities on the national pastime and consequently baseball lovers cannot afford to miss a single article of this great series which will appear exclusively in the Boston AMERICAN. Here is the fourth of Mr. Fullerton's articles:

(A "dope" comparison of how Paskert of Philadelphia and Speaker of the Red Sox will perform in the World's Series.)

IV. The Centre Fielders.

SPEAKER.

PASKERT.

This is like comparing Goldberg to Michael Angelo.

Dode Paskert, who has carried the centre field's burdens for the triumphant Phillies this year, is the luckiest guy in baseball in that he now must be compared with Tris Speaker. Compared with a lot of other centre fielders, Dode would make a fine showing in figures, but against that unhuman being, Speaker, the "dope" makes him look like a 1912 Ford alongside a twelve cylinder limousine.

There is nothing to it. Speaker outclasses Paskert so far that the Red Sox pile up a huge lead in the "dope," which will have to be offset in other directions.

I was so anxious to see how the

FIGHT TO DEATH IN NORTH END

Peter Peone was stabbed to death and Peter Mercodlaino was shot five times in the head, in a furious knife and gun duel over young Mrs. Peone, in the Peone flat on the top floor at No. 18 Stillman street, North End, at 8:30 today. Mercodlaino is expected to live.

Mercodlaino, the police say, was trying to force Mrs. Peone, at the point of a revolver, to elope with him. He was trapped in this effort by Peone, who had been hiding in a closet, following his wife's complaint of Mercodlaino's attentions.

The police later found in the Peone flat a letter which they say Mercodlaino wrote to Mrs. Peone, threatening death if she did not go away with him. This letter was translated thus:

> My Dear Carmella:
> I'll come around tomorrow sure and find out yes or no, if you will come with me or not. I will kill you if you don't, do you understand, because I am crazy about you and I love you with all my heart. I will send a young fellow around to get your clothes and, if you don't send

"MORAL WIFE" ASKS COURT TO ANNUL A SECRET MARRIAGE

Henry F. Dorgeloh, Boston manager of the Hamburg-American Steamship Line and husband of Mrs. Estelle Dorgeloh, who is now in Brooklyn, N. Y., seeking an annulment of her secret marriage, fifteen years ago, to Alphonsus Murtagh of New Jersey, today stated that his wife had never regarded her marriage to Murtagh as "legal."

Mrs. Dorgeloh testified that as matters now stand she is only the "moral wife" of Dorgeloh.

Mr. Dorgeloh stated today that his wife was seeking to have the secret ceremony annulled in order to insure her daughter by a second husband of a $100,000 inheritance.

"My wife was only fifteen years old when she went through this ceremony with Murtagh," he said today. "She has never considered that marriage as legal or binding. At the time it was performed she was anxious to go on the stage. She believed, however, that her age was against her.

WENT THROUGH CEREMONY.

"In order to surmount this obstacle she agreed to go through a ceremony that supposedly made her a married woman. She thought such a ceremony would create the impression that she was older.

"The ceremony was performed in Brooklyn. My wife never saw Murtagh after that night. I have never seen him myself and do not know anything about the man.

"Three months after this Murtagh affair my wife married a man named Charles E. Barker. She had one child by Barker, a daughter, Beatrice, now eighteen.

"Barker died five years ago. The girl is entitled to an inheritance of $100,000 under his will if this Murtagh ceremony is annulled. That is the purpose of the action my wife has started.

"Neither my wife nor myself have ever regarded the Murtagh ceremony as legal."

LIVE IN BROOKLINE.

Dorgeloh and his wife live on Park street, Brookline.

If Justice Aspinall grants a decree annulling Mrs. Dorgeloh's first marriage, Beatrice Barker will come immediately intoh er great-grandfather's estate. The annullment of Mrs. Dorgeloh's first marriage would also have the effect of making her present marriage regular and legal, and would legalize Murtagh's present marriage. He was remarried and is living with his second wife at Somerville, N. J.

"Neither Mr. Murtagh nor I intended actually to become husband and wife when we went to the home of the minister, May 1, 1897, and went through the marriage ceremony," Mrs. Dorgeloh testified. "The marriage was brought about through my desire to go on the stage.

"I was only fifteen years old. My father was dead, my mother was in Europe and my two married sisters were in New England. I lived in a boarding house on Livingstone street, Brooklyn, and worked as a stenographer in Manhattan. One night, through friends, I met Philip Reilly and his wife, theatrical people, who lived on Degraw street.

"Reilly told me that my dream of becoming an actress might easily be realized. He told me that if I would go and live with him and his wife he would teach me to do a 'little sister' act. I went to their home to live. Later I went to the office of a big theatrical manager in Manhattan, whose name I do not now recall, and told him I wanted to go on the stage.

"The manager pointed at my short skirt and laughed. 'You are too young,' he said. When I told Reilly of the incident, he laughed, too, and said: 'If the manager had seen a wedding ring on your finger you'd have got him all right. You had better let me get you a fake marriage certificate. You can show it to the next manager you see, and he will take you.'"

Mrs. Dorgeloh said that a few days later Reilly suggested that she and Murtagh, a friend of his, go through a fake ceremony and have a marriage license made out. Mrs. Dorgeloh said she thought it was a "great lark" and consented.

"Reilly took us to a minister's house on Seventh avenue, Brooklyn," Mrs. Dorgeloh continued. "I said I did not want to deceive a minister. Reilly forced me up the steps. 'You've got to go through with this now,' he said. 'Tell the minister you are twenty years old, and from Philadelphia.'"

The ceremony took place. The certificate showed that the marriage was performed by the Rev. Dr. McCrossin. She and Murtagh separated at once, Mrs. Dorgeloh said, and she returned to Reilly's home.

BRITISH PLAN IN BIG DRIVE TO DESTROY GERMAN LINES OF COMMUNICATION

Allies Continue Terrific Onslaughts North of Arras and in Champagne.

known as the Fort de La Defaite (Defeat Fort).

"The night was calm on all the rest of the front.

"Despite atmospheric conditions which were most unfavorable, our airship squadrons yesterday bombarded the lines of communication behind the German front. Shells were thrown on the stations at Vallee de la Suippe, Bazancourt, Warmerivielle, Pont Faverger and St. Hilaire-Le-petit, as well as on a marching column near Somme."

BRITISH PLAN TO TAKE GERMAN LINES OF COMMUNICATION

LONDON, Sept. 30.—The flower of the British army in France is being hurled forward in a terrific effort to capture the entire system of German line of communication.

It is the greatest British offensive since the war began.

The English army's part in the unprecedented drive in the west is being carried out under special orders from Earl Kitchener, the British War Secretary, to smash the Teuton lines or use every human endeavor in trying.

The sixth day of the mighty battle, whose chief storm centres lie between Arras and La Bassee and in the Champagne and Argonne regions, found no let up in the drive against the two flanks of the German army of invasion.

In the lulls between infantry assaults and counter attacks the great guns of the allies and Germans engage in shattering artillery duels across fields strewn with thousands of dead and wounded.

Every troop and supply train returning from the front is crammed with wounded and the military hospitals are overflowing.

La Bassee, Lens, Vimy, Fampoux, Wilterval, Mericourt and scores of other towns lying within the German lines between Arras and the La Bassee canal are being pounded night and day by the guns of the British and French.

A German salient extends west of Lens, and this is being hammered on the north side by the British while the French from their new position at Hill 140 deliver smashing attacks against the southern side.

Battered trenches, over which the allies swept when the battle began on Saturday, are still choked with German dead. The British and French are relying on their artillery and the bayonet. The chief hope of the German defenders is their machine guns, of which they have hundreds.

Loos, Hulluch and Angers, which have been captured by the allies since the Fall drive began, are heaps of ruins, the shattered houses standing like grim monuments above piles of English, French and German dead who fell in the hand-to-hand fighting in the streets.

GREAT BRAVERY SHOWN.

Every dispatch from the front, official and unofficial, emphasizes the bravery shown on both sides. No quarter was given nor asked in the greater part of the infantry fighting on Sunday and Monday.

In the Artois, where the country is thickly settled, the Germans fortified all the houses on their front, turning the ancient stone buildings of the French into fortresses with machine guns bristling from every window. Even the churches were turned into blockhouses and guns were placed in the belfries.

On the other hand, the fighting between the French and Germans in Champagne and the Argonne is taking place in the country where the soldiers embrace in their grapple in the fields and amid the hills and forests.

The most tremendous efforts are being made by the French in the Argonne to dislodge the Germans from their trenches at La Fille Morte, "The girl of death." Never was a name more appropriate. The first line of German trenches there are level with corpses and the fields before them are winnowd with the dead of the brave attacking forces.

NEAR OLD ROMAN ROAD.

In the Argonne the fighting line lies north of the old Roman road, a monument to the handiwork of Caesar's legions, which has withstood the ravages of centuries. North of Auberive, Souan, Pethes, Les Mesnil, Beausejour, Masinges and Ville Sur Tourb, the French are attacking over a front of twenty miles wide to drive the Germans from the Tahure-Cernay highway, and from their works defending the railroad that passes through Somme Py. All the roads for miles behind the German lines are shelled constantly to prevent the shipment of ammunition and soldiers to the front.

Masses of fresh troops are held in reserve by the French, and as soon as the first line is exhausted reinforcements are rushd forward.

Field Marshal Sir John French is reported to be in command of the operations from Lens to Ypres, while General Joffre is said to be in the Champagne.

REPORT KAISER AT FRONT.

The Kaiser, according to one report, has arrived at the western front and has already dismissed some of his generals for allowing their lines to be pressed back to almost the breaking point.

Significance is attached to the news that the French-Swiss frontier has been closed to visitors going to Switzerland. Mail, telegraph and express service have also been suspended by the French War Office.

Telegrams destined to other foreign countries are subject to long delays. This indicates a heavy troop movement on the Swiss frontier and perhaps another drive into Germany on the extreme south.

MARCONI, EYE WITNESS OF BATTLE IN FRANCE, DESCRIBES STRUGGLE

LONDON, Sept. 30.—"The armies of French and Joffre are making a veritable hell for the Germans. The onslaught of the allies' guns has been terrific."

Thus Guglielmo Marconi, wireless inventor and lieutenant in the Italian army, who has just returned to London from a five weeks' trip to the British and French lines, describes the awful havoc of the allies' advance in the western theatre of war. Mr. Marconi for six days was an eye witness of the offensive of the allies and saw the huge force of British and French soldiers rush upon the German trenches and observed the slaughter of the Germans that ensued.

TRENCHES BLOWN UP.

He is inspired with unbounded confidence, after what he has seen, of the ability of the allies to push the Germans out of France, but he feels it will be some time before they are entirely dislodged.

He tells of the battle in these words: "Just after daybreak came the order of 'forward.' The effect on the men was electric. While the soldiers, with faces eager for the fray, jumped from the trenches, the great guns in the rear began belching out a rain of shells. Soon the road was taken up by smaller guns, until the air was simply filled with smoking, screeching shells driving deadly fire straight into the German trenches. I want to say that the aim of the British and French gunners was magnificent. They hit exactly where they wanted to and with telling effect. The German trenches were literally blown to bits.

"While this inferno was going on the British and French soldiers, under command of cool and courageous officers, were tearing their way through the barbed wire entanglements and making for the trenches from which the Germans were trying to scramble. The attack so surprised the Germans that for a moment they seemed confounded by it.

LOSSES ARE GREAT.

"But after leaping from their trenches, their officers checked the panic and the Germans tried to make a stand for their lives. They turned their heavy guns upon the onrushing allies, ploughing into the very heart of the attacking force. For just one instant the allies' lines trembled under the deluge of iron; then, with their artillery roaring behind, they pushed on up to the muzzles of the guns.

"Brave men were mown down in the ranks of the allies in this amazing onslaught, but the loss to the Germans was infinitely worse. The British and French soldiers pushed ahead in face of a blistering, withering fire until they reached the trenches, where they used their bayonets on the enemy. This hand-to-hand attack was too much for the Germans, who were forced to draw back to save themselves from utter destruction.

"When the allies saw the enemy retiring they went at the fight with fresh energy. While the German guns poured out a hurricane of shells and the aircraft rained down bombs, the allies, with sublime heroism, pursued the attack until the Germans were chased clear out of their trenches and forced to retreat away beyond them."

WOUNDED SOLDIER TELLS OF WHAT HE SAW IN BIG DRIVE AROUND LOOS

LONDON, Sept. 30.—The Daily Mail publishes the following account of the British drive around Loos, as related by a wounded soldier:

"At 4 a. m. our heavy guns started a furious bombardment, and our small quick-firing guns just behind us opened a point blank fusillade against the trenches opposite, fifty yards away. It literally swept away the German parapets. This lasted fifteen minutes. The sharp, fierce barking of our own quick-firers blazing away just a foot or two above our heads as we crouched down tight into the muddy trenches, seemed to drive us mad.

"PREPARE TO CHARGE."

"It was about 4:30 o'clock when 'stand-by' was passed along. You just pass it along, and the order flies down the line of trenches in a few seconds. I felt all stiff and rigid. I remember fixing my bayonet; then some one said, 'prepare to charge.' I repeated it to the next chap in a funny squeaking voice. It didn't seem like me talking. Then there seemed a pause. I sort of prayed that something would stop the next order.

"Then suddenly, when I thought it would not happen, everyone was shouting 'go!' and we were all climbing over the trench sandbags. I rushed forward a few yards and fell down in the slushy mire when I saw others dropping. Then forward again, till we were within ten yards of the trenches. 'Charge!' shouted the officers along the line, and we all yelled.

"I remember standing on the top of a tumbled-down parapet. It was a mess of earth, torn sandbags and pieces of barbed wire. I saw two Germans. They seemed hesitating whether to throw up their hands or shoot. Then I just wanted to kill a man. A chap does see red! I remember vividly that impelling desire to slay. One I stuck with my bayonet and pulled the trigger at the same time, and the other fellow—I just bayoneted him, too.

WOUNDED BY SHRAPNEL.

"We took that first trench without a casualty. There wasn't any fight left in the poor beggars; they were all doddering. I began to cool down a bit then, and the order came along to build head cover and to hold the trench. We did this by humping a sandbag across the trench and putting it up the other side.

"The Germans were now opening fire upon us from their second line—rapid rifle fire and machine guns. We stuck it out for ten minutes and then were scrambling forward again.

"Meanwhile, during the wait, bombing parties had crept forward and were giving the Germans beans. We took all the cover we could, crept along the traverses and up the communicating trenches and then, when we got within a dozen yards, we did it all over again—that yelling, ear-splitting charge.

"I saw three snipers huddled around a maxim gun. They were shouting something. I put it across the three of them, and just then I got hit with a piece of shrapnel. I went down and did not get up again till I was helped back to the first aid some hours later; but I heard that our chaps who had again gone forward had captured the third line of trenches. They say the fighting there was worse than ever because the Germans had managed to get up some reenforcements."

Russian Mine Sinks U. S. Ship Vincent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Ambassador Marye at Petrograd and the American consul at Archangel, Russia, today cabled that the American sailing ship Vincent was wrecked by striking a Russian mine off Cape Orlov on September 27. The vessel was a total loss, but the crew was saved. The captain and three members of the crew were injured by the explosion and are being cared for in the hospital at Archangel.

DRIVE ON BERLIN FROM SOUTH PLANNED

LONDON, Sept. 30.—"The most important operation of the war" is the manner in which the report of the landing of British and French troops at Port Katherin, near Salonica, is described.

This campaign has for its object a drive upon Berlin, according to an officer of the British general staff of the Dardanelles forces.

Martial law was proclaimed in Macedonia today, Athens dispatches said. The Chamber of Deputies approved Premier Venizelos' program establishing a state of siege in territory obtained from Bulgaria in the Balkan war, and adopted all the proposed measures placing Greece on a war footing.

The premier received an ovation in Parliament when he stated the reasons for the mobilization of the Greek army and outlined his program. He made it clear that mobilization was the direct outcome of the preparations for war made by Bulgaria.

GOUNARIS APPROVES.

Ex-Premier Gounaris, leader of the neutrality faction, followed the Premier with a speech in which he approved the measures taken by his successor at the head of the government. M. Gounaris also was enthusiastically cheered.

The chamber without a dissenting vote appropriated $28,950,000 to defray the expenses of mobilization, and to help the families of Greek soldiers left without means of support.

The British officer who predicts the drive on Berlin is Captain Compton Mackenzie, who said, on his arrival at Athens, from the Gallipoli operations:

"I believe that we are on the eve of the most important operation of the war, namely, the landing of troops in Macedonia, to begin the march, not so much on Constantinople as on Berlin. The two offensive forces are gradually closing in. The Mesopotamia expedition is approaching Bagdad and from the Suvla Bay-Gaba Tepe line an attack on Constantinople may begin at any moment.

"It is my opinion that the co-operation of Greece with the allies will begin the last chapter of the war. One more gap in the iron ring around Austria and Germany is being closed. The final victory will be fought out on the plains of Hungary. The way to Berlin lies through Budapest and Silesia."

Another despatch from Athens asserts that 300,000 Austro-German troops have begun an advance on the Serbian frontier in the direction of Orsova.

A number of unconfirmed reports have reached the various European capitals announcing a Cabinet crisis in Bulgaria which may culminate in a sudden change of that country's policy, a change generally expected to be favorable to the allies.

CRISIS IN BULGARIA.

A Havas dispatch from Athens asserts that Bulgaria will begin an attack upon Serbia within fifteen days, plans being now drawn up by the Bulgarian general staff with the aid of numerous German officers, while another dispatch from the Greek capital to the same news agency declares that the Bulgarian Ministers of Finance and Commerce have resigned because of complete disagreement with Premier Radoslavoff on the policy to be followed in view of the determined attitude of Greece.

German Airman Takes 2 French Planes in Fight

BERLIN, Sept. 30.—Sergeant Boehm is a member of a Bavarian aviation corps. When four French aeroplanes approached Freiburg, Boehm rose alone to defeat them. Having no companion, he had to direct his aeroplane and fire his gun.

He killed the pilot of one French aeroplane and the observation officer of another. Both aeroplanes were forced to land, and the surviving occupants were made prisoners.

"The Grand Duke of Baden congratulated Sergeant Boehm in the presence of the troops, and later, by order of the Emperor, decorated him with the Iron Cross of the first class.

Dim Lights of London to Ward Off Zeppelins

LONDON, Sept. 30.—The police have issued an ordinance further restricting the lighting of London at night. When the new order becomes effective Friday night virtually all that remains of directly visible lights in the metropolitan district will disappear.

Necessary lights along the water front must be so completely screened as to prevent any reflection on the surface. Lights on vehicles must be further dimmed.

Any illumination for advertising purposes is expressly prohibited and the lighting of railway stations and tracks must be reduced to the minimum of safety.

Dr. Dumba to Close Villa on Saturday

LENOX, Sept. 30.—Dr. Dumba, ex-Austrian ambassador to the United States, today announced that on Saturday he would close the Dumba Summer villa, Poplars, here and start for New York, where, on Tuesday, accompanied by Madame Dumba, they would sail on the steamship New Amsterdam, for Holland.

RUSSIANS HOLD TEUTONS NEAR DVINSK

By International News Service.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 30.—Field Marshal von Hindenburg's army is only ten miles from Dvinsk, but it is being held at bay there by repeated attacks of General Ruzky, commander of the Northern Russian army.

Officials of the War Office expressed the belief today that, barring unforeseen developments, the Russians would be able to remain on their Dvina front for some time.

To the south of Dvinsk in the region about Vilelka, Minsk and Moledetschno, the Germans have apparently embarked on a new enterprise which Petrograd military experts view as a flanking movement by which the Kaiser's troops are attempting to reach Polczk and advance along the railroad running northwest to Dvinsk.

Great forces of German cavalry are operating in this region. They are fresh troops which seem to have been held in reserve.

Plea for Hillstrum by Swedish Minister

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—An appeal for a commutation of the death sentence imposed on Joseph Hillstrum, I. W. W. leader, was made by telegraph today to Governor Spry of Utah by W. A. F. Egengren, the Swedish minister to the United States. The minister in notifying the State Department of this action stated that after an examination of the record he was convinced that there was grave doubt of Hillstrum's guilt. Hillstrum is a Swedish subject and known as the "Sweet singer of the I. W. W." and is to be shot at Salt Lake City tomorrow.

France Warns of Hold-up in Cables

The Commercial Cable Company, No. 112 State street, today, announced the receipt of the following notice from its New York headquarters:

"We have been notified by the French Government that all communications for or passing through France, are now subject to indefinite delay because of military necessity."

High Officers in British Army in Flanders Killed

By International News Service.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—Many high officers of the British army have been killed in the fighting in Flanders. Among those listed as dead today are Lieutenant-General Sir Thompson Capper, commander of one of the army corps, and Major-General Thesiger.

General Capper was fifty-two years old and entered the army in 1882. He was decorated several times in previous wars and was commandant at the Indian Staff College from 1906 to 1911.

"Why don't I feel more rested?"

Instead of feeling alert and brisk in the morning—fatigue poisons have left you limp. What happens, and how to help remove the cause.

Few people realize that fatigue creates deadly poisons in their systems.

Ordinarily, nature will remove these poisons when we are at rest. But when we overwork, our system is loaded down with fatigue poisons which nature is unable to completely remove.

That is why, after a day's hard work, you find yourself "tired" next morning—and wonder why you don't feel more rested.

Doctor Mosso, of Turin, Italy, proved that these poisons pass into the blood and are carried to all parts of the body. He injected the blood of a tired dog into a fresh dog and the latter then showed every evidence of fatigue.

One cause of fatigue easily removed

Pounding away on hard leather heels, stepping down with a bang, on flinty pavements, is a serious factor in producing fatigue poisons. An average of 8,000 steps a day will jolt your spine with a total of 1,200,000 pounds.

You can remove this great cause of fatigue by wearing O'Sullivan's Heels of New, Live Rubber—they absorb the jolts and jars of your daily walk. You will feel the difference in the evening when you come home and in the morning when you rise.

Try this little experiment in health saving today. Be sure to ask for O'Sullivan's; black, tan or white; for men, women and children; 50c attached at any shoe store or shoemaker's.

SAVINGS BANKS PROHIBITED FROM TAKING PART IN LOAN

That the savings banks and trust companies of Massachusetts are prohibited by law from participating in the $500,000,000 war loan to the British and French governments is one of the interesting phases of the international situation.

The bonds also will be subjected to both State and Federal taxation, reducing their net earning power to far below 4 per cent. In Massachusetts the bonds will be subject to a tax of about 1.8 per cent. as personal property. The yield is therefore cut down from 5½ to 3.70 per cent. net before the Federal income tax is collected.

Bank Commissioner Augustus L. Thorndike pointed out today that the deposits of savings banks can be invested only in certain public bonds approved by various acts of the Legislature. While the power of trust companies to invest is more liberal, Mr. Thorndike explained, they are excluded along with the savings banks from investing in war loans of this character.

BAY STATE PLAN.

"The idea of mutual savings in this State," said Mr. Thorndike, "was to foster the industries of Massachusetts. Savings banks were originally allowed to invest in the public funds of the New England States, or of the United States, of course, and in the notes or bonds of any city, county or town in this State. Subsequently the Legislature allowed the savings banks to invest in the bonds of any of those States whose continuous credit has been so high that their bonds could be disposed of in times of greatest stress.

"In 1904, the Legislature by special act allowed the investment of savings banks deposits in any city of the New England States whose net indebtedness does not exceed 5 per cent. of the valuation, and of the various counties and districts, under proper protection for the investors.

"In various other years, the Legislature passed acts allowing investments in the bonds of New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Missouri, Iowa and the District of Columbia, and when I became Bank Commissioner the Legislature accepted my recommendation to allow investments in the bonds of several other States whose continuous credit has been good.

GRANITE STATE IN LINE.

"The Southern States have never been included and only those new western States that have proved themselves to be upon a sound financial basis. We never have included a State that at any time repudiated its obligations. Naturally, we have not included any foreign countries and, therefore, the savings banks are not permitted to loan money on the bonds of the warring countries."

Mr. Thorndike said that the trust companies are privileged to loans upon corporations, real estate and personal security. No law has been passed, he said, that would permit the trust companies to accommodate the warring nations for what has been termed by many as "blood money."

Savings banks and trust companies of New Hampshire as well as of many other States cannot participate in the $500,000,000 loan.

"It appears to me that the loan will have to be floated by the individual bankers," said Mr. Thorndike. "For example, an individual in Boston might borrow the money from one of the trust companies on a personal loan and deposit the war bonds of Great Britain and France as security. But to safeguard the depositors from monopolistic control of the trust companies, the State, under its laws, prevents a loan of more than one-fifth the capital stock of a company to any individual."

BEGIN SALE SOON.

The sale to the public of the bonds is expected to begin in about ten days, New York advices say, but already sugscriptions running into the millions have been pledged to the underwriters' syndicate headed by J. P. Morgan & Co.

Rapid progress is being made with the preliminary work, and New York bankers interested in the floating of the loan are so sure of success that they are already predicting that it will be over-subscribed.

Names of many rich Americans, some of whom are connected with industries selling war supplies to the allies, were mentioned in Wall Street today as prospective purchasers.

Among them were the names of J. P. Morgan, fiscal agent for the British government in this country; E. H. Gary of the United States Steel Corporation, Charles E. Coffin of the General Electric Company, James Stillman of the National City Bank, Charles M. Schwab of the Bethlehem Steel Company, Cleveland H. Dodge, a copper magnate, Thomas F. Ryan, Henry Clay Frick, Frank A. Vanderlip, James J. Hill, E. C. Converse, William Ellis Corey, William Rockefeller and Percy Rockefeller.

The name of Andrew Carnegie was not mentioned, but it was reported that John D. Rockefeller, Sr., was expected to purchase some of the notes.

Although great efforts will be made to "nationalize" the loan it is believed that about sixty per cent. of it, or $300,000,000, will be placed in New York.

On account of the financial condition of the British government it is expected that the allied governments will call for payment in January.

Morgan Returns Mrs Washington's Will to Virginia

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 30.—J. P. Morgan has sent to Justice James Keith, president of the Virginia Court of Appeals, to be disposed of by him at his own discretion, the will of Mrs. Martha Washington, taken from Fairfax Court House by a Federal soldier during the war, and bought by the late J. Pierpont Morgan for his library.

The State of Virginia has a suit pending in the Supreme Court of the United States to compel Morgan to return the will. The suit probably will be dropped.

Foss to Demand G. O. P. Plank on Prohibition

That Former Governor Eugene N. Foss will demand the adoption of a prohibition plank by the Republican tSate Convention was the report circulated in political circles today.

Friends of the former Governor who supported him in his recent campaign declared that he will first present his demand to the committee on resolution, which is vested with authority to prepare the draft of the party patform.

In the event of failure before the committee, the former Governor is said to be determined to serve his demand upon the convention itself.

Mr. Foss' program is said to have created consternation among the Republican leaders, who were hoping that rohibitionP would be forgotten.

HUSBAND SLAIN IN DEFENCE OF HIS HOME

them, I come myself. I salute you with all my heart———

But Mercodlaino decided, for some reason, to come in person instead of sending a messenger for Mrs. Peone's clothing.

Mercodlaino came to the flat with a suit case and entered the Peones' chamber. When Mrs. Peone refused to go with him he threatened her with a revolver.

Then, according to the police, Mercodlaino went to the bureau and began putting some of the wife's clothing into his suit case.

At this point the infuriated husband jumped from his closet, shooting as he came. When the battle was over Peone lay dead on the floor with Mercodlaino's knife in his left temple.

Mercodlaino staggered out and toward the Relief Hospital, bleeding from five bullet wounds. A policeman took him to the hospital and the tragedy of the Peone home was soon learned.

Peter Peone, the husband who died in defence of his home, was thirty-two years old and the father of three children. He was a painter.

Mercodlaino is also a painter. He has a wife in Newark, N. J. He is a few years younger than Peone.

Mercodlaino came to Boston, got a room at No. 18 Wiget street, North End, and found work. He met Peone and helped the latter out in some painting in the Peone flat.

In that way Mercodlaino met Mrs. Peone. The police have it from Mrs. Peone and from other witnesses that Mercodlaino, forgetting about his wife in Newark, became infatuated with Mrs. Peone.

Mercodlaino, a bold youth and one of tremendous physical strength—as shown by his walking away with five bullet wounds in his head after the fight—insisted that Mrs. Peone elope with him. He set today for the start.

Last night, as the police story was given out, Mrs. Peone told her husband of Mercodlaino's efforts to break up the Peone home.

Peone did not go to work today. He watched, looking from a front window of his top-floor tenement.

About 8:20 o'clock Peone saw Mercodlaino coming along Stillman street with a suitcase. Peone ran into a closet in the bedroom. He was armed with a five-chambered revolver. Every chamber in the cylinder held a cartridge.

Mercodlaino came upstairs and right into the Peone flat. The police were given rather incoherent details from the terrified wife later as to just what happened when Mercodlaino came in, but the gist of it was as follows:

Mercodlaino became enraged when Mrs. Peone refused to elope with him. He threatened her with a revolver, then put the weapon back in his pocket and began taking some of Mrs. Peone's clothes out of the bureau and putting them in his suitcase, as though to force her to accompany him.

Any threats made by Mercodlaino could be heard by the young husband, listening with frightful intensity in the closet.

Peone sprang out and fired three shots at Mercodlaino, who was bending over the bureau. Each bullet struck Mercodlaino in the neck. The intruder whirled, then sprang into a corner. Peone let him have the two remaining bullets from his weapon. One hit Mercodlaino in the upper lip. The other hit the right-hand corner of his mouth.

But all five bullets couldn't stop Mercodlaino. He sprang at the husband with a knife having a four-inch blade.

Mercodlaino had a revolver, the one he had used to threaten Mrs. Peone. But the man evidently relied on his knife in a battle of life and death.

Peone's weapon was empty. Mercodliano struck once with his knife. The thrust went home. The blade entered Peone's left temple. The point penetrated to the brain. Peone fell.

Mercodliano released his grip on the knife handle and the weapon went down with the slain husband, the handle projecting from his distorted face.

Mrs. Peone had fled to a flat below. Mercodlaino started out. The man was actually carrying four bullets in his head. The fifth had gone through some flesh on his head, carrying two teeth with it.

A policeman met Mercodlaino on Stillman street and helped him to the hospital, while other officers went to the flat where Peone was found dead.

Mrs. Peone was found in a tenement below and was taken as a witness.

STATE FIREMEN PARADE AT PORTSMOUTH

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Sept. 30.—With a parade of fire fighters past and present, through the principal streets of the city, the eighteenth annual convention of the New Hampshire State Firemen's Association closed today.

Thousands of visitors augmented the crowds along the route of march as the delegates and visiting firemen paraded with the active and veteran firemen of this city. The apparatus of the Portsmouth department was conspicuous in the parade, in which Mayor Harry B. Yeaton and the City Council rode.

At the conclusion of the parade, the firemen sailed on a steamer down the Piscataqua River to Portsmouth Harbor. Later the navy yard was inspected.

The order of parade was as follows:

Platoon of Police.
Board of Engineers, Portsmouth Fire Department.
Portsmouth City Band.
Delegates and Visiting Firemen.
Auto Chemical Crew.
Kearsarge Engine Company and Hose 3.
Exeter Band.
W. J. Sampson Hook and Ladder No. 1.
Moses H. Goodrich Engine and Hose 4 Company.
Colonel Sise Engine and Hose 2 Company.
Sagamore Engine and Hose 1 Company.
Fife and Drum Corps.
Veteran Firemen.
Supply Wagon and Crew.
Mayor Yeaton and City Council.

William F. Woods, chief of the Portsmouth fire department, was elected president of the association, succeeding President Thomas W. Lane of Manchester. Mr. Lane is the oldest fire chief in the State and for fifty-two consecutive years has been an officer of the Manchester fire department, of which he now is chief. Other officers elected were:

Vice-presidents—James H. Fiske of Laconia, Harry E. Colby of Franklin, William A. Horne of Somersworth, John Cunningham of Franklin, H. L. Whittier of Wolfeboro and E. C. Brooks of Milford.

Secretary—Oscar P Stone of Manchester.

Treasurer—John H. Gilbride of Manchester.

CEYLON REVOLT REPORTED BY BERLIN

BERLIN, Sept. 30.—Private reports from the British island of Ceylon are to the effect that the entire island has been in a state of rebellion since June and that all the tea plantations on the island have been destroyed, more than 2,000 persons having been shot during the course of the rioting.

At Colombo the struggle was a terrific one, street fighting taking place and shops being ransacked, the reports declare. The damage done amounted to more than $2,500,000. Sixty persons were shot here and 1,800 arrests were made.

The monsoon was the worst the island had experienced in a hundred years, and superstitious Mohammedans regarded its severity as a punishment by the Allah.

BENEDETTO BRIN STILL AFLOAT, SAYS ROME

ROME, Sept. 30.—The fire that caused an explosion on the Italian battleship Benedetto Brin, damaging the pre-dreadnaught, with the loss of Rear Admiral de Cervin and over 300 of her crew, is today believed to have been caused by the short circuiting of an electric wire.

The battleship is badly wrecked, but still afloat, according to the Messaggero. The work of clearing away the wreckage is proceeding actively. Several guns already have been taken out and preparations are being made to lift out the bigger ones, the newspaper says.

FACTS vs. KANSAS

By HOWARD NOBLE

"STATISTICS ARE LIKE SAUSAGES—it all depends on the old woman who makes them," once observed a canny Scot, who might easily have had Kansas in mind when uttering that homely simile. Because of prohibition, Kansas has been held up to the rest of the country as a model state.

"Statistics" have been quoted to prove that because of prohibition Kansas has had fewer deaths, less crime, less pauperism, less insanity, more happiness and more prosperity than any other state in the Union. In comparison with official census returns these claims are seen to be absurd.

Mortality and Morals

Kansas, instead of having a death rate of 7.5 per 1000, as has been claimed, has a rate of 10.60. Twelve registration cities of Kansas have a rate higher than the average for the United States. Of twenty-three capital cities in license States, SEVENTEEN have a lower death rate than Topeka. FOURTEEN of twenty-three registration States have a lower homicide record than Kansas. TWENTY-FOUR States have a LOWER RATE OF SUICIDE than has the registration area of Kansas.

What about the morals of the boys and girls? U. S. Census Bulletin 121 (1910) shows that NINETEEN STATES have a lower rate of juvenile delinquency than Kansas.

Divorce and Finance

THIRTY-FOUR STATES have a lower divorce rate than Kansas. SIXTEEN States have a lower rate than Kansas for divorces granted to wives because of the husbands' drunkenness, and FIFTEEN of these are license States.

Prohibition is supposed to make for a richer religious life. U. S. Census Bulletin 103 shows FORTY-THREE States with a larger percentage of church membership than Kansas.

Nor does Kansas make any better economic showing. In 1913, the United States had 10,766,936 savings bank depositors, with savings of $4,727,403,950. Kansas had only 20,240 with $4,689,387. In the whole country one person in every NINE had a savings account, with an average of $439.07. Kansas had but one in every EIGHTY-SEVEN, with an average of $231.69. The per capita for the entire country was $71.51; for Kansas it was only $4.15.

Paupers and Insane

Claims were made recently that eighty-five counties in Kansas have no insane persons, and that thirty-eight county poorhouses are without tenants. The truth is, these counties are too poor to care for their crazy persons and paupers, who are consequently placed in State Institutions. TWENTY-FOUR States have a lower rate of insanity than Kansas, and FOURTEEN have a lower pauper rate. Even in the record of insanity caused by strong drink, Kansas is behind NINETEEN other States, FOURTEEN of which are under license laws.

Strong Drink Rampant

As to drinking and drunkenness. The Wichita Beacon recently stated that records showed 12,000 gallons of liquor were imported into that city every month. Ninety thousand quarts were imported into Topeka in a recent month, two quarts for every man, woman and child in that city.

In Wichita the Chief of Police was recently arrested on the charge of selling liquor seized from bootleggers. Arrests for drunkenness in Wichita last year were 1480, one to every 35 of population, and there were besides 380 arrests for bootlegging.

Real statistics do not favor Kansas. They prove that Kansas, instead of being the most advanced State in the country because of prohibition, has been badly distanced by many license States in the race toward the goal of material and moral well-being.

CLAIMS WOMEN LACK BUSINESS PRINCIPLES

According to Anna Pennington, the diminutive dancer with the "Ziegfeld Follies" now playing at the Colonial Theatre, women, especially those of the stage, are lacking in sound business principles. She has been convinced that she does not possess the makings of a business woman.

Last season F. Ziegfeld, Jr., submitted to the dancer a contract calling for three seasons' employment. The figure named in the paper struck Miss Pennington as being rather a fancy one, and she lost no time in attaching her name to the contract. Immediately after signing same she remarked:

"I guess I'm a pretty good business woman."

Recently a New York motion picture company approached Miss Pennington with a contract caling for 104 consecutive weeks' employment as a screen actress at $1,000 weekly, or $104,000 for the two seasons' work.

The dancer was willing enough to accept, but when informed by Mr. Ziegfeld that he would force her to live up to her former contract she found, it necessary to pass up the fortune which the motion picture concern was willing to bestow upon her.

WORCESTER, Sept. 30.—Deer damage claims in Worcester County allowed by the County Commissioners, have passed the $500 mark.

MISS FOLEY FACES ARREST FOR SPEECH

WORCESTER, Sept. 30.—Miss Margaret Foley, the suffragist leader, will be arrested the next time she attempts to conduct a street corner rally here, and she will be summoned to appear in court if she shows up here again, is the warning issued by Deputy Chief of Police Thomas McMurray, to suffragists.

Miss Foley defied the police department by addressing a gathering at Front and Commercial streets.

Chief George H. Hill has reprimanded Policeman Stephen J. Walsh for not placing Miss Foley under arrest when she insisted upon speaking. Policeman Walsh listened to her talk, but took no action outside of remonstrating with the suffragist.

DEPUTY CHIEF TALKS

"If Miss Foley tries to speak on a public street in Worcester again she will be arrested," declares Deputy Chief McMurray.

"She should have been arrested at the time. I can't say whether we will bring her into court as it is. You see, the policeman there was not on his job, and as he permitted her to keep on talking, that might complicate matters.

"If he had arrested her then, that would have ended it. Chief Hill has reprimanded him for failing to do so. All members of the department understand what they are to do in such cases in the future.

"We are still considering this case and have not decided whther we will have Miss Foley come before the court or not. If she comes to Worcester again we will decide it then. And if she attempts to speak on a street corner she will be arrested in any event."

WOMEN DEFEND LEADER.

The whole trouble is over the interpretation of Chief Hill of the city ordinance against blocking traffic. He holds that it prohibits the collecting of a crowd by street corner meetings.

Miss Foley's defiance of the police has resulted in the local battle for votes for women becoming more heated than ever.

Mrs. Chandler Bullock, recognized as the leader of the antis, has issuel a statement in which she declares that coming from women who are clamoring for the ballot, the incident shows that the men can expect little from them in the line of good laws and order.

Prominent suffragists, including Dr. Myrtle Smith and Mrs. Samuel L. Poole say that they had nothing to do with planning the defiance of the police by Miss Foley, but that they aren't sorry it happened and believe she was justified in it.

Change Bill at Exeter St. Theatre

A complete change of bill goes into effect at the Exeter Street Theatre today. John Mason and Hazel Dawn are presented in the very thrilling film melodrama, "The Fatal Card," which is a five-reel feature. The surrounding bill is strong and includes instrumental and vocal numbers. The Exeter Street Theatre is one of the few picture houses which can boast of a carriage and auto trade. Its location in the residential district of the Back Bay secures for it an exclusive clientele.

WIRELESS TALK ACROSS CONTINENT; SOON POSSIBLE FOR BOSTON TO PHONE TO JAPAN

For the first time in the history of the world the human voice has been transmitted across a continent by wireless telephone. This amazing achievement, announced today in Boston by President T. N. Vail of the Bell telephone system, means that it soon will be possible to talk directly from New York to Tokio, Japan, using the transcontinental line from Boston or New York to San Francisco and wireless across the Pacific. It means also that with this new invention the United States, if it were involved in a war over as wide an area as that now raging in Europe, would be enabled to have its army officers communicate freely across the battlefields without the use of wires.

The feat was accomplished late yesterday, when President T. N. Vail of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, sitting in his office at No. 15 Dey street, New York, spoke into a Bell telephone connected by wires of the Bell system with the wireless tower at Arlington, Va., where his words were picked up by the wireless and carried to Mare Island, San Francisco.

This latest and most remarkable triumph of the telephonic art was made under the direct supervision of John J. Carty, chief engineer of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, who has been in San Francisco for several weeks. He received President Vail's first messages at Mare Island and repeated them back to Arlington by wire.

U. S. NAVY EXPERTS VERIFY.

The demonstration was held by permission of the United States Navy authorities at the two radio stations and the experiments were witnessed and verified by them.

Following President Vail, Union N. Bethell, senior vice-president, and John I. Waterbury, a director of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, and Bancroft Gherardi, engineer of plant of the company, also talked into the telephone and were heard at Mare Island and had their words repeated back by Mr. Carty there. Others present were Ex-Senator W. Murray Crane, of the executive committee, General Superintendent of Plant F. A. Stevenson, and engineers O. B. Blackwell and H. P. Charlesworth.

The transcontinental wireless telephone employs radically new ideas in wireless working, which have been invented and developed by the general engineering staff of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, working to this end by direction of President T. N. Vail. But it is interesting to note that in starting his first message on its flight through the ether to the Pacific coast, President Vail used a Bell telephone, designed for wire working.

At 12:48, eastern time, President Vail, surrounded by a few officials of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, picked up a Bell transmitter and called into it, "Hello, Carty; this is Mr. Vail."

In spite of the fact that the words went by wire to Washington and then leaped through the air to the Pacific coast, Engineer Carty's reply came back almost instantaneously, "This is fine; this is wonderful." The groups of men gathered together at opposite sides of the continent then knew that wireless transcontinental telephony would henceforth be numbered among the miracles of modern science.

After an extended conversation with Mr. Carty, Mr. Vail was followed by others present and in all cases the talkers were informed by the listeners at Mare Island that their voices were distinct and recognizable. Later a similar and equally successful demonstration took place at Arlington, where engineers of the army and navy talked direct to Mare Island by wireless.

The Bell wireless system is not yet fully installed at Mare Island, the receiving apparatus only being in position there. Hence, it was impossible for the messages to be telephoned back by wireless, but all the messages sent from or by way of Arlington tower were recorded at Mare Island, and their receipt fully confirmed by the officials in their reports by wire.

MARKS AN EPOCH.

Colonel Samuel Reber, who is in charge of the aerial signal service of the army and who was present at the demonstration in Washington and by wireless to San Francisco said:

"The successful transcontinental transmission of speech betwen Washington and San Francisco marks an epoch not only in technical achievement, but also in the development policy of a great corporation. When conversing some two years ago with J. J. Carty, the chief engineer of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, on the economic destiny of the telephone, he stated one of the goals sought by his company was the development of a truly universal telephone service.

"The transmission of audible speech to Europe by wireless can be taken as an assured fact, and it would have been attempted ere this had conditions on the other side been favorable. I cannot express my appreciation of this wonderful achievement in too high terms and I heartily congratulate Mr. Carty and his corps of able assistants for their great technical achievement in annihilating distance for audible speech, either with or without wires."

ABSOLUTE ACCURACY AMAZES.

In the absence of T. N. Vail, president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, U. N. Bethell, senior vice-president of the company, who also talked over the wireless telephone and was present when Mr. Vail talked, made the following statement:

"This romantic incident—this talking by wireless across the continent, means another epoch in the develoument of the art of transmitting intelligence by electricity. The talking was very satisfactory, words and sentences uttered from New York were repeated back from San Francisco with absolute accuracy, and even my voice was recognized immediately when I spoke into the transmitter. Another wonderful achievement is to be credited to the Bell organization, and for the second time within a year its engineers have presented this country with a marvelous triumph of science and magnificent aid to civilization, commerce and society.

"The possibilities of wireless telephony, great as they are, will be mainly in the direction of extending the use of the wire systems, and its greatest utility will probably always be as auxiliary, tributary and supplementary to the older system. For emergency and special use, the new invention offers thrilling suggestions, and its practical and economic value should not be underestimated but much of this is in its connection with the wire systems. Its great value will be to supplement and extend the telephone service wire system in those situations where it is impossible to string wires, and its use over wide expanses of water, desert, etc., opens up attractive fields to the immagination, especially when some way is found to overcome the well known disturbances which interfere so much with all wireless communications, whether telephone or telegraph. In spite of this, however the value of wireless telephony can hardly be estimated, and it is sure to be helpful beyond expression in making a neighborhood of nations.

VOICES EASILY RECOGNIZED.

J. J. Carty of New York, chief engineer of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, now in San Francisco, at the St. Francis Hotel, officially confirmed the report that President Vail, seated at his desk in New York, talked by wireless telephone with Mr. Carty, who was listening at Mare Island navy yard.

Others who listened to the conversation at Mare Island were: Lieut. Commander Sweet, U. S. Navy, Mr. Allen H. Babcock, consulting electrical engineer of the Southern Pacific Company, Chief Electrician Peterson of the U. S. Naval radio station, Mr. Arnold, Mr. Griswold and several other engineers of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company.

U. N. Bethell, vice president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, John I. Waterbury, one of the company's directors, and B. Cherardi of Mr. Carty's engineering staff, also spoke from Mr. Vail's office by wireless telephone to Mr. Carty and to the others present with him.

Among those who talked to the party at the Mare Island station from the Arlington, Va., station were Captain Bullard, chief of the radio service of the U. S. Navy; Colonel Samuel Reber of the U. S. Army; Dr. F. B. Jewett and Professor John Mills of Mr. Carty's staff. Words, phrases and sentences were heard from all of those by the listeners at Mare Island, notwithstanding the fact that the "static" disturbances were of an unusually violent nature.

President Vail sent the following telegram to Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy:

"Personally and as president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company I wish to express to you my thanks for the courtesy of [illegible] Department in extending to us the privilege of connecting special wireless telephone apparatus to the Navy Department wireless telegraph towers. By means of this special apparatus we have today successfully carried wireless telephone communication from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast."

To Put On Flesh And Increase Weight

Most people eat from four to six pounds of good solid fat-making food every day and still do not increase in weight one ounce, while on the other hand many of the plump, chunky folks eat very lightly and keep gaining all the time. It's all bosh to say that this is the nature of the individual. It isn't Nature's way at all.

Most thin people stay thin because their powers of assimilation are defective. They absorb just enough of the food they eat to maintain life and a semblance of health and strength. Stuffing won't help them. A dozen meals a day won't make them gain a single "stay there" pound. All the fat-producing elements of their food just stay there in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste. What such people need is something that will prepare these fatty food elements so that their blood can absorb them and deposit them all about the body—something, too, that will multiply their red blood corpuscles and increase their blood's carrying power.

For such a condition it is well to recommend eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is not, as some believe, a patented drug, but is simply a careful combination of six of the most effective and powerful assimilative and flesh building elements known to chemistry. It is absolutely harmless, yet has been wonderfully effective and a single tablet eaten with each meal often, according to reports of users, has the effect of increasing the weight of a thin man or woman from three to five pounds a week. Sargol is sold by all good druggists everywhere on a positive guarantee of weight increase or money back.

A-K Tablets for Various Forms Of Headache

"It is necessary in order to treat headaches properly to understand the causes which produce the affection" says Dr. J. W. Ray of Blockton, Ala. Continuing, he says: "Physicians cannot even begin the treatment of a disease without knowing what causes give rise to it, and we must remember that headache is to be treated according to the same rule. We must not only be particular to give a remedy intended to counteract the cause which produces the headaches, but we must also give a remedy to relieve the pain until the cause of trouble has been removed. To answer this purpose Anti-kamnia Tablets will be found a most convenient and satisfactory remedy. One tablet every one, two or three hours gives comfort and rest in the most severe cases of headaches, neuralgia and particularly the headaches of women."

When we have a patient subject to regular attacks of sick headache, we should caution him to keep his bowels regular, for which nothing is better than "Actoids," and when he feels the least sign of an oncoming attack, he should take two A-K Tablets. Such patients should always be instructed to carry a few Anti-kamnia Tablets, so as to have them ready for instant use. These tablets are prompt in action, and can be depended on to produce relief in a very few minutes. Ask for A-K Tablets.

Anti-kamnia Tablets can be obtained at all druggists.

New England's favorite Laundry Soap announces FREE Premiums

Lever Bros. Co., makers of Welcome Borax Soap, today gave out the following important notice:

"Beginning October 1st, a complete line of valuable premiums—1000 in all—will be given without one cent of cost, to all women using Welcome Borax Soap."

For years, Welcome Borax Soap has been considered practically a necessity by the careful New England housewife, famous all over the country for her cleanliness. One generation after another has declared Welcome the finest laundry soap made.

From now on, all users of Welcome Soap are to receive valuable premiums in exchange for wrappers without paying a cent.

Thousands of dollars' worth of these premiums are all bought—just the sort of highest grade premiums you would expect Welcome to give.

Compare them with premiums offered elsewhere—you will find we require not nearly as many wrappers. Note especially the large assortment of fine premiums for a small number of wrappers.

Introductory Offers Announced Tomorrow

So you can actually see for yourself just what splendid value these Free Welcome Soap premiums are, special introductory offers have been prepared. These will be shown in this paper every Friday, beginning tomorrow. Each premium will be offered at half the regular number of wrappers!

Boston Grocers on Mount Washington; Minstrels Perform

MAPLEWOOD, N. H., Sept. 30.—The trip to the summit of Mount Washington took many of those on the excursion and outing of the Boston Retail Grocers' Association from Maplewood. Those whom the lure of the mountain failed to move remained at headquarters and diverted themselves by participating in a ladies' bowling tournament, a baseball game, a golf tournament and at quoits. A feature event of the outing was a minstrel and vaudeville show. D. W. McGregor was interlocutor. Frank E. Willis, Charles Fosgate, W. A. Morrill and Joseph Knox jiggled the bones and tambo. E. B. Stiles and Mrs. Carolina A. Hooker were soloists.

A liberally applauded event was a series of selections rendered by the Grocers' Sextet, consisting of Messrs. W. A. Morrill, D. W. McGregor, John F. Barry, Luke Drew, F. H. Hayes and George Ormon.

Widener Son Now Entered on Harvard Rolls as Freshman

Peter Arundel Brown Widener, 2d, son of Mrs. George D. Widener, who gave Harvard its $2,000,000 memorial library, is enrolled as a freshman at Harvard.

Widener, who is also a nephew of the Philadelphia capitalist, for whom he is named, has modest apartments in Standish Hall in the freshman dormitory group. He is a St. Mark's School boy and was an earnest student while there, earning public recognition for his punctuality among other achievements.

Widener's brother, Harry Elkins Widener, was drowned on the Titanic and the handsome Harvard library was erected in his memory by his mother and the priceless Widener collection of first editions placed there in a specially constructed room and under a special librarian, George Parker Winship of Providence, R. I.

THINK BOY, 7, HIT CHILD WITH AXE

NEW BEDFORD, Sept. 30.—In the cellar of a house at No. 206 South Front street was found the body of Louis Pildas, four, son of William Pildas of No. 275 South Second street.

The lad was unconscious from the effects of many cuts from an axe. Young Pildas is now at St. Luke's Hospital, with a slight chance for recovery. The police believe the cutting was done by Antone Pinna, seven, son of Mrs. Joseph Pinna, of No. 208 South Front street.

The Pinna boy and his brother deny all knowledge of the crime. Henry Souza, seven, who lives in the north part of the house occupied by the Pinnas, says that he saw Antone Pinna crawl into the cellar window and strike the Pildas boy two or three times with the hatchet and then crawl out of the window.

He adds that the Pinna boy told him not to tell but that he went home and told his grandmother.

Mrs. Pinna denies knowledge of how young Pildas was injured or whence came the hatchet which was found in the back yard. She claims that when she found the boy in the cellar she carried him out the back way, but the police, who found blood on the steps leading up from the cellar to the first floor, believe that she carried him up that way and out by the front door.

Mrs. Pinna says that she went to her aunt's to do some washing and that her two sons went with her. While being interrogated by the police, she said the boys were still at her aunt's, but a search of the premises discovered them locked up in a bed-room.

Aberdeens Sail to Lecture in U. S.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 30.—Passengers on the American liner New York included the Marquis and Marchioness of Aberdeen, former Viceroy and Vicerene of Ireland. They are to tour the United States and Canada, where they will attend meetings and give lectures on social subjects.

DORCHESTER FIREBUG SUSPECTS CLOSELY QUESTIONED BY POLICE

is said to be owned by Joseph Segal of No. 41 Middlesex street, who is also the builder. The fire was seen by a citizen, burning in the attic, and when the apparatus arrived flames were bursting through the roof.

Quick work on the part of the firemen kept the damage down to $1000, as estimated by District Chief Walter McLean.

Captain Charles T. Reardon of the Adams street police station today threw a dragnet out and rounded up every suspicious character in his district in an effort to ferret out the mysterious firebug who has been terrorizing Dorchester.

The AMERICAN has offered a reward of $100 for exclusive information that will lead to the arrest and conviction of the firebug. Anyone who thinks he or she has information of importance should ring up MAIN 5180 and ask for the City Editor. All communications will be considered confidential.

QUESTION SUSPECTS.

The histories and recent actions of these men will be investigated today until the police are satisfied that none of the suspects has any connection with the fires.

Early today Captain Reardon personally questioned several suspects. In one of them the police thought they had a capture of importance. This man was seen in the vicinity of several of the fires at the time they happened, and in one instance, if not two instances, he actually pulled in the box. On investigation, however, the police found that the young man's work regularly took him in that vicinity at night.

Captain Reardon is using every effort to clear up the case so that Dorchester residents may sleep soundly and not be almost frightened to death every time they hear a bell.

He has every available man on the job and they have something more than the usual incentive to solve the mystery, for several of the firebug's victims have been policemen.

Notwithstanding the redoubled activity of the police and the special patrol being kept on the lookout for suspicious characters, one of the policeman victims, Patrolman Blake of No. 133 Homes street, today reported that his damaged house had been burglarised during the night.

BREAK INTO BURNED HOUSE.

After the fire, which badly damaged his house, he nailed up the doors and windows on the street floor. Some one ripped off the boards and broke in, but as all the valuables, not destroyed by fire, had been removed, nothing of value was taken.

All Dorchester is up in arms at the mysterious firebug, who seems to set fires where and when he wants to with impunity. His activity has resulted in two movements for the better protection of the district.

The first movement is for more officers, especially more night patrolmen. Those in favor of this point out that Dorchester has a large population spread out over an immense area, and that it is physically impossible to police the district as it should be. Captain Reardon is being highly praised, but many of the citizens feel he should have more men at his command.

The other agitation is for the establishment of a chemical engine company at or near Mt. Ida. Those in favor of this claim the nearest fire companies are engines 17 and 18, both of which have fairly long runs to reach the section between Harvard street and Mt. Ida.

WANT NEW CHEMICAL.

They say a quick-running chemical for this district, which is exclusively composed of wooden dwelling houses, would be able to extinguish many small fires at the beginning, which, with a few minutes' start, might result in serious fires.

A search of the fire records today reveals the fact that there are at least half a dozen and perhaps more fires of mysterious origin, the general features of which are similar to those already published. These fires cover a period of a little more than a year.

Meanwhile, real estate men and police point to this fact, which may or may not be important:

THE FIRES IN EACH AND EVERY CASE, EXCEPT TWO, WERE SET IN THREE-FAMILY WOODEN HOUSES.

In the case of the two exceptions the incendiary plied his torch in two-family houses. The total period covered fourteen months.

VETERANS OF G. A. R. IN FINE FORM AFTER GREAT PARADE

One of the features of the Grand Army parade in Washington was this pair of veteran "Drummer Boys," who hobbled sturdily along the route of march to the applause of all spectators.

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Although 200 members of the Grand Army of the Republic were given medical treatment at the various hospitals yesterday, most of them for exhaustion resulting from their march in the hot sun, not a single fatality was reported today.

The various hospitals also reported today that practically all of their patients had been able to go to their hotels and boarding houses.

Whether it was the enthusiasm of participating in the largest parade in recent years or being reviewed by the President that buoyed their spirits up, the veterans were in fine shape today. They congregated early at Camp Emery, where the business sessions of the encampment began. It was expected that officers would not be elected before tomorrow.

Elias Montfort of Cincinnati still was in the lead for commander-in-chief. The next encampment will probably be held at Atlantic City.

The Massachusetts delegation, with the second largest representation of 1,200 men in line, made an excellent appearance as it marched before the President.

Led by Department Commander Alfred H. Knowles of Arlington and staff followed by Post 36 of Arlington, twenty-seven of the Bay State posts were represented in the parade and review. Following Commander Knowles' home post, in the order of their appearance in line, came Posts 4 of Melrose, 5 of Lynn, 7 of Boston, 10 of Worcester, 11 of Charlestown, 12 of Wakefield, 15 of Boston, 16 of Springfield, 19 of Fitchburg, 26 of Roxbury, 29 of Waltham, 30 of Cambridge, 42 of Lowell, 46 of Fall River, 47 of Haverhill, 49 of Newburyport, 50 of Peabody, 60 of Franklin, 63 of Natick, 64 of Clinton, 81 of Watertown, 120 of Lowell, 113 of Boston, 163 of Framington, 185 of Lowell and 191 of Boston.

Suffragists Seek Signers of Pledges for 'Victory March'

Massachusetts suffragists are circulating a "parade pledge," to be signed by those who plan to march in the big suffrage parade October 16.

The parade, known officially as the "Suffrage Victory Parade," will be even larger than in May 1914. No special costumes are required of the marchers. Instructions will be mailed to those who pledge themselves to participate.

The parade committee has headquarters at No. 585 Boylston street, at the office of the Massachusetts Woman Suffrage Association.

Those who intend to march in the parade should sign name and address to the following pledge and mail it to the parade committee at that address:

"I will march in the Massachusetts Woman Suffrage Victory Parade."

Labor Leaders Must Stand Trial

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Justice Tompkins today overruled the motion made to dismiss the indictments against four labor leaders on trial for murder with three of their colleagues and ordered the trial to proceed. The seven defendants are accused of having murdered Herman Liebowitz, a strike-breaker.

OPEN HEARINGS ON RAILROAD VALUATION

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—The railroads of the United States, through the President's conference committee, today presented to the Interstate Commerce Commission their views on just how the physical valuation of the railroad properties now being made should be arrived at.

The commission today opened a three-day hearing on the subject and the views of the railroads were presented in a printed brief of 500 pages and oral arguments by the various officials of the roads.

At the outset it was pointed out that the railroads in the United States comprise 250,000 miles of line and with double tracks, etc., 376,000 miles of track.

The President's conference committee represents approximately 86 per cent. of the entire mileage. The capital securities of these companies represented approximately $15,330,000,000, divided into about sixty per cent. of bonds, etc., and forty per cent. of stocks, the latter owned by over 620,000 stockholders.

U. S. THREATENS TO INVADE MEXICO

By JOHN W. ROBERTS.
Staff Correspondent of International News Service.

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Sept. 30.—The American government has served notice on the Carranza commander at Matamoras, General Emiliano F. Naffarette, that if he does not send troops against the Mexican raiders encamped opposite Progreso, his failure to move will be regarded as an unfriendly act and the "necessary steps" to protect Americans will be taken by the United States troops on the border.

It became known through official channels that the notice to General Naffarette was sent through the War Department.

American officers intimated that the warning given the Carranza leader carried a strong hint that the "necessary steps" implied a threat that United States troops would cross the Rio Grande to capture the Mexican band.

Military officials on the border say that the Mexicans assembled opposite Progreso now number 700 men and that they are fully armed for an invasion.

ARMENIANS ASK WILSON TO ACT ON KILLINGS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—President Wilson today was asked to use the influence of the United States to persuade the German government to intervene in behalf of the Armenians now being massacred in Asiatic Turkey on the ground of "military necessity."

The appeal was voiced by two Americans, who were introduced to the President by Judge Harry V. Osborne of the Court of Common Pleas of Newark, N. J.

The identity of the two Armenians was withheld at their own request, as they told the President that if it was learned their relatives in Turkey would be killed. The President listened to the suggestion as made, but it is understood that his position is that such action on the part of the government would be unwise.

MOTOR NOTES

By J. C. KERRISON.

H. E. Sidles of Lincoln, Neb., one of the most prominent automobile dealers of the West, and Mrs. Sidles, are in Boston after a tour of about 1,500 miles over the road in a 1916 Buick six-cylinder touring car. Mr. Sidles is the Buick distributor in Lincoln, Omaha and Sioux City, and for the past few years it has been his custom annually to take a long tour in one of the new Model Buicks.

Last year, with Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Noyes, the party visited California, and at the urgent request of Mr. Noyes, New England Buick distributor, Mr. and Mrs. Sidles this year headed East, and they are now on their first visit here. As the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Noyes, Mr. and Mrs. Sidles visited the Rockingham Fair, and said that it compared favorably with the big fair in Des Moines. Today the party will start on a tour of New England in the same car in which Mr. and Mrs. Sidles made the trip to Boston.

A large number of the local trade will leave Boston on the 10 o'clock train for New York tomorrow, and will be very much in evidence at the big race on Saturday. Included in the party is J. H. Johnson, Buick; Harry Pyke, Chalmers; Walter Bliss, Goodyear; E. F. Becker, Stutz; Albert Hart, National; W. J. Connell, Overland; Harry Fosdick, Dort; Messrs. Nettleton and Crittendon, Chandler, and Arthur Hinchcliffe, Winton.

* * *

E. A. Gilmore, who is now wholesale manager for the Carl H. Paige Motor Company, New York distributors of the Mitchell, spent the last two days in Boston. He is finely located in the big city and just came to Boston to tell his old friends of the grandeur of the metropolis and the wonders of the race on Saturday.

* * *

President Walter E. Flanders of the Maxwell Motor Company paid a visit to Boston yesterday. He spent a pleasant afternoon with J. W. Bowman, local distributor of Maxwell cars, and complimented his old friend, not alone on the volume of business he has transacted, but also on the excellency of his salesroom and service station.

FOSS CASE IS POSTPONED TO OCT. 21

A novel issue was raised today in the Boston Municipal Court, fourth division, when the criminal libel case of Dennis D. Driscoll against ex-Governor Foss was called, with Judge Thomas H. Dowd upon the bench.

Melvin M. Johnson, counsel for Defendant Foss, asked for adjournment, first, because of the absence of three material witnesses—Martin T. Joyce, secretary-treasurer of the State branch A. F. of L., who is attending a convention in Minneapolis; Andrew C. Hughes, president of the Trades Union Liberty League, who is in San Francisco, and Mr. Sherman, secretary to Mr. Foss, who is in Maine.

"These men are capable of testimony which goes to the root of this matter," said Mr. Johnson, and we want a real hearing."

Then Attorney Johnson followed with the intimation to Judge Dowd that, inasmuch as his name had been submitted to the defendant, while he was Governor of Massachusetts, for appointment to the bench, and Governor Foss did not appoint him, that it was only fair notice be taken of the conscience of the court in trying the case.

Attorney John P. Feeney, counsel for the complainant, opposed adjournment. He was ready to go on with the hearing, which, after all, could only result in finding probable cause for submission to the Grand Jury.

"I have no interest as to who the judge is who tries this issue," said Mr. Feeney. "I have the utmost confidence in our judiciary. A poor, friendless unfortunate standing in the dock could not indicate his preference as to what judge should try him. The only issue to be tried is probable cause. I am opposed to adjournment."

Judge Dowd said: "In a consultation of the judges as to the assignment for this case, I was asked if I could try the issue without prejudice. I said I could. But, in view of what is now said by counsel for the defence, I believe he is perfectly right.

"I think it might reflect on the court if I acted in this case. I shall ask the chief justice to assign another judge. The case stands adjourned until Thursday, October 21."

Continue Case of Joseph H. Gilmore

PAWTUCKET, Sept. 30.—Joseph H. Gilmore of the American Association of Machinists, who has been conducting a strike of machinists at the plant of the Jotter & Johnston Co. for the past seven weeks, was in the Tenth District Court today, charged with violating a city ordinance in refusing last Saturday to move on when addressing a group of strikers in the street. Gilmore pleaded not guilty today and his case was continued until October 13.

Stamford Local Train Derailed

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—The Stamford local on the New Haven railroad was derailed at Woodlawn station today by a broken axle. All the passengers received a severe shaking up, but no one was injured.

SUES MINISTER FOR $100,000 IN LOVE CASE

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—The Rev. Dr. John Wesley Hill, widely known as a lecturer on politics and peace, has been named as defendant in a $100,000 suit for alleged breach of promise brought by Lucile Covington of this city, also a lecturer on economics and other topcs.

Dr. Hill was formerly pastor here of the Metropolitan Temple. He has also held pastorates in many cities in the West.

He was chaplain of the Republican National Conventions in Chicago in 1908 and 1912. As a peace advocate Dr. Hill visited the Orient in 1911 and established the Asiatic branch of the International Peace Forum in Tokio.

Dr. Hill and his wife left yesterday for Detroit. Before going he said in response to questions:

"This is merely a matter of money—a personal matter."

It was admitted at the Hill home, No. 121 West 115th street, that Miss Covington had worked for Dr. Hill. It was added that other members of the family have received letters from her the past few months. Further details, it was said, would have to be obtained from Bainbridge Colby, Dr. Hill's attorney.

The latter, when seen, said:

"I have no idea of the nature of the action, and when Dr. Hill left the city he did not know himself.

"It is true Miss Covington worked for Dr. Hill, but she left his employ some time ago. I can't say with too great emphasis that there is no foundation for such a suit. I may add that we now are trying to find where Miss Covington is."

Makes 2 Attempts to End His Life

Victor Seested of No. 4 Crescent street, Waltham, an employe of the Waltham Watch Company, is in a serious condition at the Waltham Hospital today as the result of two attempts to end his life.

Seested first left his house, walked to the nearby river and threw himself into the water. He was rescued by two neighbors.

Seested was then taken to the police station. While alone in the guard room he slashed himself with a milk bottle.

U. S. Envelope Co. Cuts Working Hours

SPRINGFIELD, Sept. 30.—The United States Envelope Company, with factories in Springfield, Holyoke, Worcester, Hartford and Rockville, Ct.; Cincinnati, Ohio, and Waukegan, Ill., announced today a change of working hours for its 2,500 employes from a 55 to a 48-hour week, without reduction in pay.

Aberdeens Sail to Lecture in U. S.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 30.—Passengers on the American liner New York included the Marquis and Marchioness of Aberdeen, former Viceroy and Vicerene of Ireland. They are to tour the United States and Canada, where they will attend meetings and give lectures on social subjects.

That Hogan who Would be Homan Is Now Homond

The "Hogans-who-would-be-Homans," the Westland avenue family which tried so hard to shed an "Irish" name because its members resented any impression that they were Irish, has at last succeeded. It is now "Homond."

At least Edward J., the father, his wife and their daughter, Gladys, are back at No. 77 Westland avenue, exulting n tne new name. Edward J., Jr., the son, is still struggling along under that "Hogan" name. Just where or how they finally succeeded in shedding the name so distasteful to them they all refuse to tell. Nor will they say what Edward J. Jr., is going to do about it.

It was last Winter that Edward J. Hogan petitioned the Probate Court, "for social and business reasons," for the right to be known as "Homans." This petition was objected to by members of the original Homans family. Then the Hogans asked for "Homan"; this, too, was refused.

The Story of a Doctor's Wife

Told by the Wife Herself

nnie Sees a Beautiful Woman in Peter's Office and Grows Jealous

CHAPTER XVIII.

HEN Peterkin was a little over two, his baby sister was born. Her coming agony to a pain-racked body endured long hours of torture. rough it all I kept telling "Think of all the women in orld who suffer and endure ve nothing to show for it. years of pain—and I shall y child."

y life with Peter had done g else for me, at least I would nd of it for this glorious edge it has brought. In the men the paternal instinct is rong that they idolize the er of their child with the wor- and devotion no childless an can ever know.

eter's tenderness was unfailing ough all the long months when eeded him most. His rapture r the perfection of his little ughter's body took on the form of rvent gratitude to the mother ho had given him his child. The oman who misses the joy of otherhood foregoes the tenderest nd divinest experience life can old. Peter and I knew kinship with heaven in our happiness over our two babies.

Little Peterkin gazed with awe and wonder at his tiny sister and asked the inevitable child question at first sight of the living doll: "Will she awake?"

His daddy and I laughed as he asked it—but I snatched my baby and vowed that she would never suffer the pains of physical break or heart-break, and Peter tossed up his boy with the laughing declaration, "No, Peterkin, we men folks are just meant to see that little Dorothys and their mothers don't break."

"Dorothy?" I asked. "Why Dorothy? You seem to have decided all of a sudden and quite without me."

With strange shortsightedness we had taken it for granted that our baby would be a boy and "James Farley" had been the title we intended to bestow upon Jimmie's godson. Girl names we had never considered—but somehow when baby came we imagined it was a girl we had wanted all along.

THE BABY IS CALLED DOROTHY

"My mother's name was Dorothea. Don't you like the name Dorothy, dear?" asked Peter.

I liked it—but I wished that he had suggested Constance, even though I agreed with his unvoiced idea that it was not a particularly pretty name.

Baby was christened Dorothy Farley Drayton.

Peter's pride in his little daughter was a growing joy to me. However much a man wants a son, however he rejoices when his first-born is a man-child to carry on his work, a man feels for his daughter a wonderful chivalrous tenderness that brings tears of joy to his wife's happy eyes.

For long months we were a happy quartette. It never occurred to me to be jealous even of Marion Farley, for whom I began to feel pity as her growing fondness for drink bloated her once chiselled face.

When Betty's letters came and Peter read them eagerly, I felt sure it was my SISTER'S letters he was reading—not those of a girl with whom he had once flirted.

Judge Snow was gone and forgotten and dismissed from my life. Jimmie Farley was "Uncle Jim" and my good friend again. If my little sister still mourned her broken engagement to Jim I did not know. There are some things of which two women never speak to each other.

THE JOY OF LIFE

So perfect was my joy that I did not even question whether it were permanent or wonder morbidly whether this were all too good to last. When I look back now and realize that after two years of serenity and joy, life swung again to the agony my last year has known, I wonder if anything in all the world endures—save only sorrow.

Two years are but moments in a lifetime. The joy of life comes but in moments—after that there are reactions, revulsions and forgettings. If the sum of the moments of happiness is great enough to counterbalance the agony, life is worth while. But in the midst of suffering how many of us remember the supreme moments of joy? How much does the sum of all those moments count?

There is always the present. If that is measured in terms of pain it is easy to forget happier times. Too many women are like me—"Slaves of the moment." In joy I forget that pain may lurk unseen, and in sorrow no memory of joy avails me.

THE BEAUTIFUL PATIENT

One afternoon in Spring just before Dorothy's first birthday the children had gone out with baby's nurse and the cook had been permitted to indulge the urgent necessity of seeing the dentist. A number of new magazines had come and as I took them from the postman it occurred to me that it would be well to carry them into Peter's waiting room and freshen up the contents of his reading table.

It was at the end of his appointed office hours and when I entered the room only one patient was waiting. I had never seen her before, but in one quick glance I decided that she was quite the loveliest creature I had ever beheld. Tall, slender, yet rounded, with a perfection of brunette coloring, and absolutely chiselled features, two things marked her out for supreme beauty—the wonderful clearness of her skin and the wistful loveliness of her intense brown eyes. Most of Peter's patients recognized me as the doctor's wife and spoke to me. This beautiful woman only stared with insolent coldness when I ventured a smile.

As I came into the hall the patient who had been with Peter was just leaving. A chill struck my heart at the thought of Peter alone with that vivid beauty shining out against the soft red background of his office. As I started across the hallway to my sitting-room a clock chimed four. I shall never be able to hear a clock striking four without remembering a long hour of torture.

At half-past four I answered the door again. Peter was still shut in his office with the beautiful stranger. At five o'clock the telephone rang and a voice asked if Mrs. Kinney were there. I said I did not know, but the description that followed made me realize that the name must apply to the beautiful woman who was still with my husband at the end of the hour.

The voice went on: "This is her mother, Mrs. Bates. I'm so worried about my daughter. She has an infected finger to be lanced and she can't stand pain. Won't you please ask the doctor if she's all right? I'll hold the wire."

My heart began to jump. An hour alone with a woman who had only an infected finger!

"I hate to disturb the doctor," I began—

Just then the door from his office opened and Peter came out. "What are you doing at the telephone, Connie?" he asked abruptly.

"It rang for so long—I thought you didn't hear—and I'd better answer it. It's for you."

"I'll speak," and Peter took the receiver from my hand.

Back in my room the slow agony of jealous torture began. Why had Peter given that patient an hour for an infected finger—why had he failed to answer the telephone? Mrs. Kinney was very beautiful. Could her coming portend any evil to Peter Drayton's wife? It was six before the front door closed and Mrs. Kinney was gone. What did Peter's keeping her with him from four to six mean?

(The next installment of this very human story will appear on this page Saturday.

More or Less True

Yes; it had come to that at last. Mr. Higgins, a kind-hearted soul, sighed as he thought of the years that had passed since Jonas had come to him as gardener. But there was a limit, and Jonas had more than reached it.

In fact, practically every flower or vegetable that was worth selling Jonas sold—and the profit he kept. So he had to go.

Behold him now, standing before Mr. Higgins in the latter's study, waiting for his wages. When they were paid, instead of leaving the room in silent remorse, Jonas remained standing as if there were something else to follow.

"What is it, Jonas?" asked Higgins at last.

"Please, sir, what about a reference, sir?"

Higgins, as has been stated, was a kindly soul, and though somewhat taken aback, wrote as follows:

"To all whom it may concern. Mr. P. Higgins of Tootham has much pleasure in stating that the bearer, Jonas Kite, is an expert gardener, and that, during the past eight years has had more out of Mr. Higgins' garden than any other man he has ever employed."

BEAUTY DOCTOR TELLS SECRET

Detroit Beauty Doctor Gives Simple Recipe to Darken Gray Hair and Promote Its Growth.

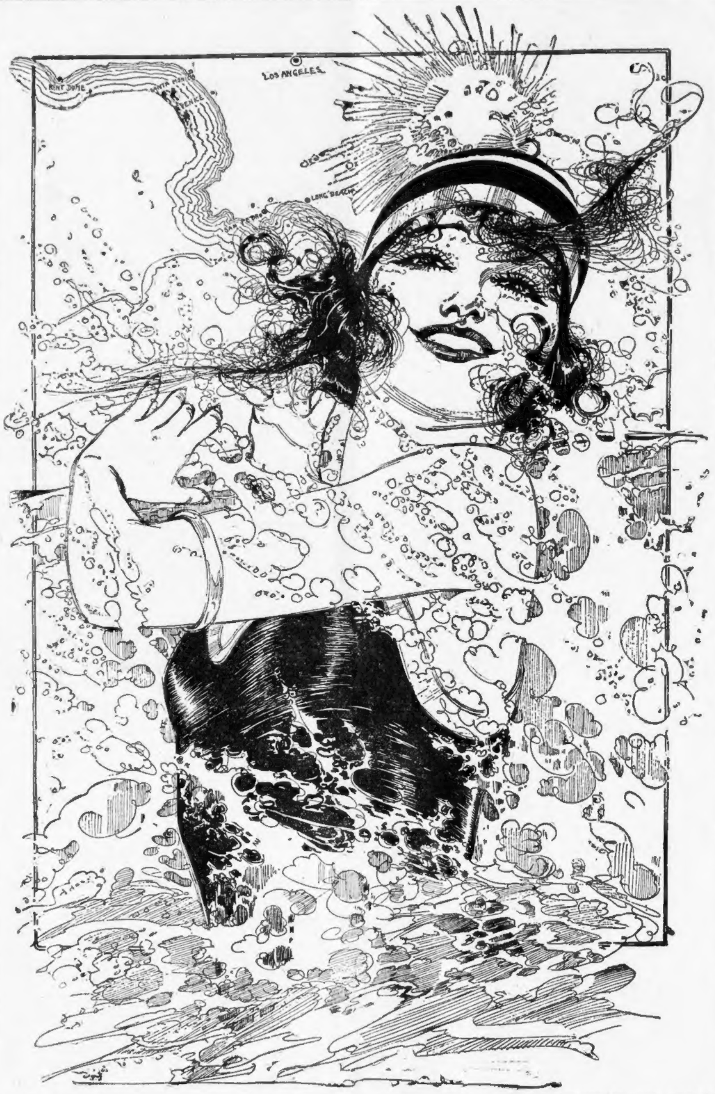
Miss Alice Whitney, a well-known beauty doctor of Detroit, Mich., recently gave out the following statement: "Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray hair, promote its growth and make it soft and glossy. To a half pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It is also fine to promote the growth of the hair, relieve itching and scalp disease, and is excellent for dandruff and falling hair."

I Know a GIRL There

No. 5
LOS ANGELES

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1915, by International News Service.



THE big blond chap with the close-cropped head like rough plush to the fingers, the very blue eyes, and blue socks to match, smiles over his nuts and cheese to the brown-eyed chap with the rebellious lock of dark hair that defies cropping and shadows one eye, and says he: "Oh, Los Angeles! Oh, yes, I know a girl there!" And so that is Los Angeles—the definition of a certain type of girl. Me, myself, who am now far away from my beloved Southwest land, I always see the sea-girl when I think Los Angeles. The girl who dines and walks there through the streets is not the type. The true girl of the palmy, dreamy city of Angeles is always, to my mind, in the sea or just out of it, or walking its sands in flat-heels and bare head yearning for it. A gay, small person she is—even when she's a blonde, a tone or two darker than the Far East girl—glad of eye, adroit of body, dreaming under a scarlet beach umbrella, racing the sun-washed sand, tossing a medicine ball, flying into the surf with a daring header, coming up laughing like a sea-witch, putting out to sea with a long sure stroke, playing with the sea as a delighted bird does his shallow garden bath! She may be busy sometimes—surely I know she is—but somehow I see her always a gayly colored sea-anemone who does not "spin!"

Here's to all of her—trooping the sands—where the indigo and jade water of the matchless Pacific rolls sweetly in, in swimming suit of knit green and orange and royal blue and scarlet, like bizarre sea-flowers on graceful silken stems, with little life-guard caps with their pompons of woolly white!

NELL BRINKLEY.

Adventures in Saving

Here is an interesting letter on saving from a man who has been economical and prosperous.

By M. F.

WISHING to show my appreciation to your paper for the advice from which I derived so much benefit, I hereby most cheerfully state that out of my salary of $1,800 per year my wife and I save $900 per year.

It would seem impossible to save this much with existing high prices of foodstuffs, etc., but if my method and your advice were followed it can easily be done.

The first thing to do is to purchase a few lots in a healthful community within twenty-eight to thirty miles from the city; then erect your home, bearing in mind not to assume a mortgage of more than 60 per cent. of the value of the entire cost of the building, and in no case assume a mortgage of more than $2,500. Then with careful management and a few personal sacrifices you will be surprised how much you can save.

Ten years of my married life, living in the city, did not offer me an opportunity to save, but since I have owned my home and live in the country I consider my equity worth $5500 over and above my mortgage. I own my own automobile, go to and from my work with it, have as good a home as one can wish for, all this within five years, and with the help of my wife, without whose aid and co-operation I would be unable to save any part of it.

You must not be a "good fellow." You must not spend your salary on cigars, liquor and style. You must not go to expensive entertainment and then spend $5 or $10 afterwards for a supper you do not need.

You can see good plays in inexpensive seats and enjoy just as good a meal in your own home.

Above all, you must not live beyond your means or even up to the limit of your means because all your neighbors have something nicer, newer and more often. This last habit is the curse which lays us open to poverty and its companion ills.

I hope that others may profit by my success.

Selfish

"I see Jack Hansom was married the other day to Miss Richley."

"Yes; I was very sorry to see it."

"Sorry? For her sake or his?"

"For mine. I wanted her."

Why We Quarreled--The Man's Side

No. 10—The Husband Who Objected to Hair Dye and Rouge Tells His Story

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

IT is said that men are vain. Perhaps they are, in a way, but, as I told my wife once, you do not see a man watching his mirror to discover if he is beginning to look old.

"No wonder!" Laura jeered when I made this remark. "It makes no difference to a man if he is no longer young. Gray hairs give him an air of distinction. If he has lived properly the years refine and improve his face. But with a woman the case is entirely different. Why, here are you—over forty-five—yet, were you single, any young girl would be proud to have you court her. You would be as eligible for marriage as when you were twenty-five—in fact, more eligible. But as for me——"

I interrupted her with a laugh. I could not help it. "Great Scott!" I exclaimed, "is that what's worrying you? Are you thinking of getting married again? Well, my dear, I don't mean to give you a chance. I hope not to shuffle off this mortal coil for some time yet."

"Oh!" she ejaculated. "How mean you are to make fun of me when you know that is not at all what I meant! I only said that to illustrate what I was trying to prove—that age does not make a man less attractive. It makes a hag of a woman. And I'm going to fight it as long as I possibly can."

FIGHTING OLD AGE

To this end she takes swimming lessons, physical culture, Turkish baths, facial massage, etc. I acknowledge that all these things keep her in good condition, but they use much valuable time and money. And, in spite of them all, she still sees the dreaded crows' feet at the corners of her pretty eyes and the gray threads in her abundant hair.

At least, she saw the gray threads until a year ago. Then she went to a hair specialist and consulted him. She told me of his verdict.

"He says," she explained with a rapidity of utterance that betrayed her nervous fear of my disapproval, "that if I go to him regularly he can restore my hair to the color it was in childhood."

"It's very nearly that color now, isn't it?" I asked. "I was always dark brown, of course."

"Oh, no, it wasn't," she denied. "It was a kind of reddish chestnut shade."

I looked skeptical. "I am surprised to hear that," I observed, "for with such dark eyes and such a brunette skin as yours one would not expect light hair, even in a child."

She ignored this and went on to tell me of what the "specialist" had said. I saw that she intended to take his treatment, and I offered no objection just then.

The "treatments" certainly changed the color of Laura's hair. Reddish and bronze streaks soon appeared among the brown locks, and at the end of a few months she had rich auburn hair.

"Just exactly what I had in my girlhood," she told me proudly. "So many people admire it now that I am glad to have it restored to me again after all these years. Jacques is surely a wonder."

I gazed often at these Titian tresses, and always with a lingering doubt in my mind. I did not tell my wife then that this striking shade of hair was absolutely unsuited to her skin. It made her complexion look pasty and faded. At last I decided to ascertain the truth of my suspicions. Jacques was not the only fashionable hairdresser and specialist in town, I went to another whose reputation was equally good.

"Is it possible," I asked him, "to restore dark brown hair to the color color of its youth—a dark red shade?"

PEROXIDE AND HENNA

"But, certainly, Monsieur," the voluble Frenchman declared, with a twinkle in his eyes, "We have wonderful compounds now—and peroxide and henna will work marvels."

I did not smile. "I mean just what I say," I told him. "Can hair be restored by any natural process to a lighter color—without being bleached or dyed, for instance?"

He ceased to grin. "Indeed, no, Monsieur. It is absolutely impossible, without the use of art. That is why our excellent and unexcelled coloring preparations are so valuable."

I had heard enough. It was henna, then, that gave my wife's hair its beautiful hues.

She knows now that I know this. Yet such is my loyalty to her that I uphold to my friends her statement that she has "restored" her hair by massage, etc. If she fibs, I must fib, too.

Nevertheless, such is also my disapproval that, not long ago I broke the silence that had kept me from open criticism of her complexion, and told her that her renovated tresses made her look pale and old. She was startled, I saw, and an expression of determination came to her lips. I did not understand it then, but I understood it a few evenings later when she appeared at a dinner, at which we were entertaining some friends, with an exquisite pink flush in her cheeks.

THE PINK FLUSH

At first I attributed this glow to the fact that she had been walking briskly that afternoon in the cold air. But when it remained throughout the evening I changed my ideas. When our guests had departed I asked her what she had been doing to her face.

"I had a facial massage this afternoon," she replied, turning away hastily. "It always brings the color to my cheeks."

"You allowed the masseuse to put on artificial color, too!" I accused.

"Well, what if I did!" she exclaimed. "Won't you let me make myself look decent—even if I am growing old"

"I'll let you make yourself look decent—but not indecent!" I declared. "As I do not care to have my wife look like the type of woman who dyes her hair and paints her face I forbid your doing so any longer."

She pretends to have obeyed me—but at times, when we are in company, I still note an unnatural pink tinge on her cheeks, and her hair still retains the "restored color of its youth."

What Next, Ma'am?

"What is my boofy baby crying for?" exclaimed the young mother, as she rushed to her yelling first born.

"Nurse," she said crushingly to the attendant, "are you sure you thoroughly understand baby?"

"Well, madam," answered the nurse, in an offended tone. "I've been at the business for ten years, and I consider that I know more about children than most women."

"But then, my good woman," said the mother, indulgently, "this is no ordinary baby. His intelligence is really beyond the ordinary!"

The nurse remained silent.

The baby stretched up a further yell and dabbed its little hands on the nurse's face.

"I have it!" exclaimed the child's mother. "The wonderful child! Of course he cries with you. His last nurse was a black one. Quick, Dobson, you will find the blacklead polish on the second shelf in the scullery!"

MRS. THOMSON TELLS WOMEN

How She Was Helped During Change of Life by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I am just 52 years of age and during Change of Life I suffered for six years terribly. I tried several doctors but none seemed to give me any relief. Every month the pains were intense in both sides, and made me so weak that I had to go to bed. At last a friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to me and I tried it at once and found much relief. After that I had no pains at all and could do my housework and shopping the same as always. For years I have praised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for what it has done for me, and shall always recommend it as a woman's friend. You are at liberty to use my letter in any way."—Mrs. Thomson, 649 W. Russell St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Change of Life is one of the most critical periods of a woman's existence. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to carry women so successfully through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and today holds the record of being the most successful remedy for women's ills known.

BIRD TELLS M'CALL THAT WALSH IS STRONGER THAN A YEAR AGO

And now it all depends, they say, upon the platform.

• • •

Mr. William Shaw, Prohibition nominee for Governor, will retire from the field and support Samuel W. McCall, IF the Republican State convention on Saturday will come out square and flat in favor of State and National Prohibition.

• • •

Mr. Charles Sumner Bird will support Mr. McCall to the best of his ability IF the Republican State convention of 1915 will declare for the important principles of the Progressive faith, and declare for them in simple and plain terms which none can misunderstand.

• • •

Mr. McCall returned to town today from his vacation in Northern New Hampshire. He will have nothing to say for publication until he is called upon on Saturday. Then he will deliver a set speech.

• • •

The news of the day in politics is Mr. Bird's letter to Mr. McCall.

• • •

The Kimball Building machine read the headlines on the Bird letter this morning and proceeded to celebrate the election of McCall.

• • •

When the Bird letter had been studied with care by the eminent gentlemen who run the "invisible government" in this State, however—by the folks "down town" and the [illegible] legislative representatives of [illegible] interests some Republicans cooled off perceptibly.

• • •

According to the gentlemen engaged in the lucrative business of "invisible government," Mr. Charles Sumner Bird agrees to support Mr. Samuel W. McCall if Mr. McCall will forthwith surrender the Republican headquarters to Mr. Bird and his followers.

It pleased none of the Republican managers, down town or up town, to read Mr. Bird's frank declaration that "Governor Walsh is stronger today that he was a year ago."

• • •

Those who read carefully will observe that Mr. Charles Sumner Bird will suport Samuel W. McCall for Governor IF

If you (Mr. McCall) can get the [illegible] convention to adopt a liberal platform, one that sincere Progressive men AND WOMEN can with self-respect and honesty subscribe to, I will support you, and if the Republican party in the nation will adopt such a platform and nominate candidates who are able and willing to carry out such a platform I will support the Republican party in the [illegible] [illegible]

BUT neither my support, nor that of the majority of the Progressives in the United States, will be attracted by weak, half way expressions of Progressive principles, or by [illegible] of the Republican party who do not take the Progressive stand [illegible]

I hope upon further consideration (Mr. Bird writes to Mr. McCall) you will see the wisdom of going farther and that you will advocate the inclusion in the Republican platform of the social welfare planks that have been a part of the Progressive platform and have been adopted in part by the Republicans of other states.

[illegible] IS AN ESSENTIAL PRINCIPLE OF THE PROGRESSIVE PARTY AND ALSO OF THE REPUBLICAN PARTY IN MANY STATES. While I hold that the inclusion of this principle in the Republican platform is highly important I realize that this measure may be effected perhaps more readily through a constitutional convention, which I consider the most important reform to be carried out.

Your advocacy of Progressive measures before the primary election won you the nomination for Governor. That, however, is not enough to insure your election.

You personally, believe in certain Progressive measures, but unless the Republican platform declares for such measures and unless you [illegible] adoption of [illegible] liberal and progressive platform in a clear and positive fashion, YOU WILL NOT BE ELECTED.

If you are handicapped by such a vague, reactionary platform as the one adopted by the Republicans in this State last year, YOU WILL BE DEFEATED.

Governor Walsh is stronger today than he was a year ago.

He will stand upon a liberal platform, which will attract Progressive voters.

There are 100,000 men, temporarily in the Republican party, who voted for me in 1914.

These men are as progressive today as they were at that time and these men are closely watching your course in shaping the platform of your party.

You and your party cannot win without the Progressive vote and that vote will not be cast for you standing on a reactionary platform. [illegible] the party [illegible] should [illegible]

AN ENGINEER HAD STOMACH TROUBLE

F. H. Colby, of No. 9 Rush St., Somerville, Says Plant Juice Made Him Like New.

Not a day passes by but what similar statements are received speaking of the great benefit derived from the use of Plant Juice, the great herbal system tonic. Probably no other discovery in the world has ever attracted the attention that this one has. Every testimonial speaks for itself and between the lines one can read the great thankfulness for relief from long-standing stomach, liver and kidney troubles. Daily well known Boston people are calling at the headquarters of the Plant Juice Man to thank him for the benefit they have derived from the use of this great remedy, and to state [illegible] on the success he has had.

One of the most recent statements made is that of Mr. F. H. Colby, who resides at No. 9 Rush Street, Somerville, a well known [illegible] of this city. He says:

"For the past 12 years I have suffered with stomach trouble [illegible] took the form of indigestion and dyspepsia and I also was a sufferer from rheumatism. [illegible] railroad engineer for the [illegible] Central R. R. for 6 years [illegible] to eat cold lunches most of the time, which brought on this trouble. My food would sour in my stomach and cause gas and a painful and bloated condition. I had severe headaches, dizzy and bilious spells. I was so weak and miserable that the doctor told me I would have to give up railroad work, as he could do nothing for me. I had no appetite, was so nervous and restless that I could not sleep at night. I had pains all through my body and a hard lump in the pit of my stomach that was just like a lump of lead. I had tried ever so many remedies without relief, until I commenced taking Plant Juice 3 weeks ago and it has certainly made a new man of me. I sleep well, my stomach is in fine condition and I can eat anything I want. I have no more dizzy spells or rheumatism. I now feel the best I have ever felt in [illegible]"

The Plant Juice Man is at the [illegible] Drug Co.'s store [illegible] Washington [illegible] where he is daily meeting [illegible] [illegible] merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

COMING—THE GREAT EVENT OF HALF A CENTURY!

1865 50TH 1915

ANNIVERSARY SALE

Sale Starts Monday, Oct. 4; ends Monday, Oct. 11.

We have planned this sale on a PRODIGIOUS scale—we expect to ECLIPSE anything heretofore attempted in the way of VALUE-GIVING.

See the special EIGHT (8) page Shepard Sections in the Globe, Herald and Post, Sunday, Oct. 3. See also the big spread in the American. Even all this, however, does not adequately tell of the AMAZING values in the 50th Anniversary Sale:

☛ THIS FRIDAY AND SATURDAY, OCTOBER 1ST AND 2ND WILL BE DAYS OF COURTESY

To our friends who may wish to avoid the rush of Monday by buying in advance

Many of the wonderful values that will be offered Monday are now on display and selections may now be made for delivery next week.

THERE ARE TWO REASONS FOR THIS ANNOUNCEMENT

(1) We have already extended this invitation by mail to our friends whose addresses we are fortunate enough to have. We therefore now extend the same invitation through the press to our friends whose addresses we do not have.

(2) From the interest already shown in this coming great sale, the indications are that the store will be packed to the doors on Monday, Oct. 4th. We have prepared for this contingency, of course—almost doubled our forces and facilities for that day. But every person we can serve in advance will enable us to serve that much better those who do come on Monday. This advance invitation, therefore, to come tomorrow (Friday) and Saturday.

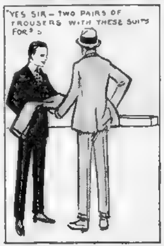
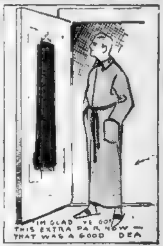
Last year he bought a suit for $15 with only one pair of trousers.

"JOHN, THAT SUIT LOOKS TOO WORN FOR BUSINESS
Last year the trousers were worn and looked badly, while the coat was still good.



"YES SIR—TWO PAIRS OF TROUSERS WITH THESE SUITS FOR $15
But this year he got in early and got a $15 suit with two pairs of trousers.



I'M GLAD I'VE GOT THIS EXTRA PAIR NOW— THAT WAS A GOOD IDEA
The extra pair of trousers, at no extra cost gave him practically two suits for the price of one.

PEN PICTURE OF HON. PAT MORAN

By RIGHT FIELD.

WHAT manner of man is this Pat Moran, Bay State born and [illegible] who will try to deprive the Red Sox of the title in the World's Series? Just what kind of a foeman have we Boston fans to meet?

WELL, Moran has baseball "doped" [illegible] serious affair. He considers every ball pitched as a separate and [illegible]

IF the Phillies win 2 to 1, his day's work [illegible] over until he figures out how [illegible] that run—that is, if it w[illegible] any faults of the Phillies, col[illegible] or individually.

MORAN is modest, mentally alert, thorou[illegible] never knows when to quit. [illegible] these qualities through the [illegible] of the season, we can count on [illegible] them in the World's Series.

MORAN is earnest, business-like, quiet. He [illegible] yells, but if he [illegible] expects and gets [illegible]

THE Fitchburg occupant of the Hall of Fame makes the subs play in theory about three games of ball a day.

DUGEY, whom Moran picked up [illegible] bench [illegible] the reserves all ordered in action and "skull practice."

AS a result, Burns becomes a sensation when he takes Killifer's place behind the bat, Stock becomes a whirlwind when Byrne is hurt. Demaree jumps in and helps Alexander save the skidding Phillies when Mayer goes wrong.

MORAN has taken some men of talent and some of mediocre ability [illegible] led them into a [illegible] ball club. Some folk will argue that a manager doesn't "make" a ball club, but it stands out to us as a pretty apparent fact that Moran has blended [illegible] and persevered and shown the "It can't be done" boys of last Spring that while he may not be the greatest manager alive, he's found what he aimed for.

MORAN'S made good and he's a foeman worthy of the Red Sox mettle.

Henriksen Turns Ankle and Won't Go Away on Tour

Olaf Henriksen, the Red Sox's timely-hitting and never-failing sub, [illegible] the trip to Washington with [illegible] Champions [illegible] He turned [illegible] ankle in Tuesday's practice game on [illegible] [illegible] so badly the club [illegible] wants him to give it a short rest so as to guarantee his appearance in the World's Series with the Phillies.

Henriksen had hopes of rejoining his teammates [illegible] New York next Monday, but [illegible] he did not think there was [illegible] make the trip even to Washington where [illegible] tomorrow and Saturday.

The little New Englander has done his share of effective work in the pinches for Manager Carrigan this season. Then it will be recalled that in the 1912 World's Series when the Red Sox [illegible] from behind in the final contest [illegible] an almost positive [illegible] Johnny McGraw's [illegible] Henriksen's pinch-hit double was a big factor in making a [illegible] Sox win possible.

Henriksen is confident he will be able to get in the World's Series. He forms Carrigan's only eligible extra outfielder, [illegible] of course, the fans want to see him hanging around and [illegible] for pinch duty.

Harvard Nine Is at It for 1916 Diamond Show

Although the Harvard A. A. has not appointed a baseball coach, Captain Henry Nash will have his candidates out for Fall practice this afternoon on Soldiers Field.

Among the members of last year's varsity [illegible] are Jimmy Whitney, George Abbott, "Mickey" Reed, Walter Carroll, Frank Coolidge and Captain Nash.

Four promising men of the 1918 freshman team [illegible] expected to report. [illegible] "Bill" Hitchcock, pitcher; [illegible] [illegible] former Andover catcher, and Wiswell, the second [illegible] [illegible] displayed [illegible] "class" last Spring [illegible] upon as varsity calibre. Wiswell will be a candidate for the outfield.

BRICKLEY BACK TO AID DROP KICKERS

Charley Brickley, Harvard's famous 1914 gridiron captain and the king of drop kickers of all generations, is due at Cambridge today. He's running up from Baltimore, running away from his duties as coach of the Johns Hopkins candidates, to give the Crimson drop kickers his personal observation.

Head Coach Haughton put in a hurry-up call for Brickley, as his kickers have not shown him much to date, and Brickley was able to arrange for a visit of two or three days to his old university.

There's a warm welcome awaiting Brickley when he shows up at the Stadium today and every Harvard graduate, student and sympathizer the land over would be beside themselves with joy if the king was coming back to line up with the varsity to occupy his old position and be seen in his old inimitable specialty in Harvard's big battles this Fall.

The Harvard varsity squad will be put through its final scrimmage of the week on Soldiers Field, behind closed gates, this afternoon. The men have been going at top speed all week and will, therefore, welcome the letup. Harvard has displayed fine offensive power all Fall, but the defence has been very much off color.

DEFENCE MUST TIGHTEN.

In the Colby game the Waterville collegians tried numerous forward passes and, although only four or five were completed, Colby's many failures were due to poor "heaves," and not to interference by the Crimson. Instead of closing in on the player throwing the ball, the Harvard ends allowed him all the time in the world and in many cases the secondary defence men came up, thereby leaving the player who was to take the pass uncovered.

Head Coach Haughton has worked all week strengthening the defence, and it is expected that against the Amherst Aggies Saturday a huge improvement will be noticeable.

Although in many cases backfield men are weak defensive players, this cannot be said of the Harvard quartet, especially when Tom Enwright, "Dick" King, Wilmot Whitney and Billy Boles are on duty.

Enwright is one of the greatest defensive backs Harvard has ever had. The former Exeter star has always displayed wonderful ability in sizing up players, and once he has the play "doped," breaks things up in general. Enwright is also one of the hardest and surest tackles on the squad. King is also a great man on the defense. He is as quick as a flash and a natural hard tackler. Whitney and Boles also rank with the best.

MAHAN ONLY RELIABLE.

In form displayed thus far this Fall Captain Eddie Mahan is the only man on the team who can be counted upon to get away any long punts. Billy Robinson, Enwright, Wingate, Rollins, Whitney and "Bob" Horween have shown flashes of form, but thus far have been "in and outers."

Yesterday Coach Haughton took Moseley Taylor under his wing and gave the big fellow about one hour's personal instruction in punting. Under the boss' tutelage Taylor got away some fine spirals, which were high and carried from 40 to 50 yards.

Of course, with Mahan in the game, the Crimson's punting is well cared for. Mahan, during his freshman year, made the longest kick ever registered on Soldiers Field. He is getting better height to his spirals this season and quite a few of his punts have sailed 70 yards. One of Mahan's strongest kicking assets is his ability to kick "where they aint," and during his two years on the varsity this has meant many yards to the Crimson.

Darmouth Trainer Dropped.

HANOVER, Sept. 30.—Dr. J. W. Bowler has been relieved of his duties as trainer of the Dartmouth eleven, much to the surprise of most of the football and athletic folks. Centre Baxter was the only varsity man getting in the practice. MacDonough, at quarter for Team A, was the cyclone of the session. Lewis Cousens, formerly of Arlington, also did star work.

DOPING OUT THE WORLD'S SERIES

by HUGH S. FULLERTON

teams compared in other departments that I switched from the infielders and looked over the outfield, and the further one goes in the figures on those fellows the worse the chances of the Phillies seem.

However, remember that the attacking strength of any team is 68% of the total game, that defensive strength is 32%, and that, of defensive strength, the pitcher is 38% and the centre fielder is 4½%. Therefore, if a centre fielder outclasses his rival and neither of them gets a chance, the worst amateur is just as good as Cobb—for that game.

Tris Speaker Is Greatest Outfielder in the Game.

But with Speaker it is different. This fellow, with all due respect for Cobb, is the greatest defensive outfielder of the day. He can go further back after fly balls, he can throw better than Cobb can, since the "Peach" injured his arm by fool efforts to pitch, and he is the biggest help to pitchers possible.

Boston's pitching staff is fine. But there are lots of pitchers who would be great if they knew that, whenever they were in the hole to a batter, they could groove a ball, let him hit it as hard as he could, and that out there in centre field was a fellow who could romp clear to the bleachers, go either direction, cover an acre of ground and save him.

I have figured Speaker worth almost 1½ hits a game to his pitchers. In one game against Chicago I saw this fellow and Hooper catch five long driven fly balls that not one of the White Sox outfielders would have laid hands upon.

Dode Paskert is a pretty good ball player, mechanically. He has nerve, he covers a lot of ground and he has a dash of speed on the bases.

He never has been rated as a smart ball player and at Cincinnati, where he served an indeterminate sentence until he finally was paroled to the Phillies, he was rated a "bone." He has been a much improved ball player with Philadelphia and has not shown much of the bone stuff the Cincinnati scribes accused him of displaying. He has shown much more "pep" and ambition. The chances are that his showing at Cincinnati was due to natural lack of interest and carelessness rather than to inability.

He is a cracking good man for pitchers, because he goes back well after fly balls, and the Boston grounds with their depth will afford him ample opportunity. He helps pitchers by watching closely and he shifts well around the field for batters and covers up close to second, possessing great speed in a forward dash.

Paskert Dangerous Against Left Handed Pitchers.

On the attack he is dangerous, and he hits left handers well. He runs the bases much better than his figures for this season indicate. He has not been running to amount to anything this year, but evidently Moran's plan of campaign does not include the stolen base at all. Evidently Paskert did not get fully into the ambition and the stride of the team until late, for his work has shown improvement only in a marked degree since it became evident that the Phillies were due to grab the flag.

Paskert has little of the "punch" that is necessary to win and he usually uses poor judgment when he starts aggressive work. Compared either as a batter, as a jockeyer at the plate, as a worrier of pitchers while batting or on the bases, as a base runner, in using judgment as to when to try for extra bases, and as a fielder or as a thrower he does not compare with Speaker.

Speaker, indeed, is, next to Cobb, the most perfect all round player in the country. He can do everything in the game, and do it better than almost anyone. He beats Cobb throwing, both for strength and accuracy, but he does not make the plays Cobb does, or try to force a play or draw it on.

You can figure safely that Speaker's batting average will be trimmed considerably in this series chiefly because of Alexander. He will hit the others unless Rixey has one of those good days. Later I shall explain to you why I figure on Rixey affecting the batting of the Red Sox. I know Moran's battle plan fairly well and I am deducting some more from the Red Sox batting ability than anyone would do from the plain study of figures. It ought to work and if it does Speaker's slugging will be reduced considerably.

Carrigan's Nifty Mound Men May Stop Phillies.

Paskert will have to have a lot of luck to hit .200. Wood, Foster and Ruth ought to check his batting almost entirely and he ought to make what hits he gets off Shore and Leonard.

You must deduct a bit more from Paskert's value in this series for this fact: He has batting weaknesses. Hoblitzel played with him for several seasons and knows them better than almost anyone; so the Boston pitchers will know all about Paskert and what it is that he does not relish.

Tomorrow the shortstoppers.

Shiverick on Sidelines.

ITHACA, Sept. 30.—The Cornell varsity had a very light workout. Right Halfback Shiverick is out with a sore foot and Hoffman did good work subbing for him. Right End Murray Shelton, out for a week, was back at his position. "Gib," the bear cub mascot, got its letter today.

Mudge Trimmed by Carter.

GREENWICH, Sept. 30.—After Dudley Mudge of Yale defeated Francis Ouimet he was picked on all sides to win the finals in the Greenwich C. C. invitation golf tournament, but he was laid out by Philip Carter of Nassau, N. Y., 6 and 5.

BLACK REPORTED BACK WITH YALE

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 30.—Frank warning is given by the Yale coaches that many changes may be expected in the line from time to time in order that the available material may be properly sifted. The candidates who have been taking examinations to remove ineligibility will know their fate today.

It is believed that "Cupe" Black, the big guard, and Higginbotham have passed their tests. Both are of varsity mould. Ben Avery, a former end, and Johnny Field, a former halfback, and captain are watching the training, but have not yet taken part in the coaching.

There was an hour's stiff individual drill for the varsity. In spots the work of the forwards and backs was ragged enough to cause the coaches much worry.

Two ten-minute periods were played in the afternoon. Both were fairly even until Galt, playing end, on the scrub team, blocked one of Guernsey's kicks and Sayre fell on the ball on the regulars' 40-yard line. From that point the second team advanced the ball in straight plays, LeGore finally circling the end for a spectacular run of ten yards and a touchdown.

Clark, who played a few moments against Maine, supplanted "Bev" Thompson at quarterback on the varsity, where he made a creditable showing. Charlton and Kositzsky, both members of the squad last year, took the guard positions, replacing Roberts and Sheldon.

Jimmy Reagon in Spotlight.

Jimmy Reagon, captain of Team B, was Boston College's star in yesterday's practice. He twice broke through and carried the pigskin over the varsity line. Coach "Steve" Mahoney is well satisfied with the early form of his charges.

GOTHAM BOXING

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Jack Reed, who recently returned to Australia from the United States, received a setback in his first encounter when he ran into Herb McCoy, who put the smother on him in seven rounds at Melbourne. Reed is the gentleman who returned to his native land with a tale of woe about American newspaper decisions.

ACCORDING to Jack McGuigan, who runs the National A. C. over in Philadelphia, they have a bantam over there who threatens to go through the ranks like a house afire. His name is "Bobby" McCann.

REPORTS from New Orleans have it that Tommy Burns and Dominic Tortorich are willing to accept Freddie Welsh's terms for a twenty-round bout with Joe Mandot some time late in the Fall. They will offer him $12,000 flat, which the champion demands for his end, win, lose or draw.

SIDELIGHTS ON SPORTS

BY RIGHT FIELD

WITH a large number of typewriters keyed to the tunes of "Moran, the New Miracle Man," "Alexander, the Big Obstacle," and other selections, we propose to beat out a few bars right here and now entitled "Boss Bill Carrigan, the Regular Guy."

WILLIAM of Lewiston stands at the heights aspired to by every manager, secure on Pennant Mountain. "Bill" has won his first pennant, after helping "Jake" Stahl to grab down the 1912 gonfalon, and we don't propose, here in Boston, to have any niche in the Hall of Fame carved for Pat Moran with ut having one just a shade nicer provided for Old Scout Carrigan.

CARRIGAN is reticent, but he "gets there." He is always fighting the foe, but is fighting that foe fairly and honestly. He stands almost alone among present managers in not wanting a victory if he cannot get it on the level. When the umpires see Bill trotting forth from the dugout or the coacher's box they know a good, legitimate kick is coming. Carrigan likes a fight as well as anybody we can recall offhand, but it must be a good, square, above-board fight or he won't mix in.

THE Red Sox leader packs a good deal of diplomacy and finesse with all his agressiveness. He is a hard taskmaster—won't stand for a laggard, a shirker or a violator of orders. He is the despair of interviewers; hard to thaw out. He isn't bashful, just sort of silent and thoughtful. We asked him before the last road trip how he expected the Sox would do. "We expect to do pretty well," said Bill, and then he hopped on the train, went West and "did pretty well," and a whole lot better, too. No "gab" about Bill; just a daily plugging along, with a mighty well trained weather eye on the horizon all the time.

WE hear a lot of talk about Moran's training of pitchers. Of course, the Fitchburg entry has only been at it a year, but his greatest exhibit is Alexander, a star before Moran became boss, and practically a one-man staff. Carrigan, with more time at his disposal, has as well rounded a pitching staff as recent baseball history can show. Wood, Shore and Foster have established a "pitching trust" and are the top trio in the league. Dauss is fourth and Scott of the White Sox fifth, and then come Leonard and Ruth of our boys.

WHO put them there? We suspect none other than William Carrigan. He has polished off the rough corners of their work and has them ready for the big October scramble. This year he will get the full credit of rounding out one fine young hurling corps, the same as he turned over to Stahl in 1912—one that was good enough for the big money.

BILL came to the Sox from Holy Cross in 1906 and was "farmed" to Toronto the following year. He came back in 1908 and in 1909 came full into the limelight when Lou Criger was let go. Since then we all recall his work.

BOY, bring Bill Carrigan's laurel wreath! Aha, a perfect fit!

Shubert and Brown to Meet October 12

Mickey Brown, the Malden bantamweight, has been matched to clash with Al Shubert at New Bedford on October 12. The weight for the tussle will be 118 pounds. Hector McInnis will referee.

Al Shea Coaching Lincoln.

The Lincoln Academy eleven, composed of former school and club team stars of Somerville, opens its season October 12. Among the players are John Canniff, the 115-pound quarter; Chester Cotter, Francis Williams and Dave Lannigan, all former high school stars. Lincoln is being coached by Al Shea.

Goodridge Is Good Looker.

AMHERST, Sept. 30.—Goodridge is almost sure to be one of Amherst's regular ends, so rapid is his play in the daily scrimmage. Fullback Melcher and Halfback Perkins of the scrubs looked good in the workout. Rider, Goodridge, Widmayer and Knowlton are the only training table appointments.

SCHOOL FOOTBALL RESULTS.
Winthrop High 13, English High 7.
Concord High 14, Clinton High 0.
Lexington High 7, Milton High 0.
Natick High 33, Wayland High 0.
Somerville High 40, Chelsea High 3.
Cambridge High 0, Lawrence High 0.
St. George's School 37, Worcester North High 0.

The big surprise of the mid-week school football battling was Winthrop High's victory over English High, 13 to 7. It was a tremendous upset in most quarters, though truth it is that Winthrop clearly outplayed the Blue and well earned its conquest.

Talcott went over for both of Winthrop's touchdowns, while Martin scored for English High. Captain Fred Monagle and La Plant were absent from English High's lineup and both were badly missed.

Somerville had a snap in its game with Chelsea, going over, 40 to 3. Bradley, Mahoney, Egan, St. Angelo, Keating and Giroux went over for the touchdowns, while Gerstein got a goal from the field for Chelsea.

Cambridge High and Latin opened its season by going to a 0-to-0 tie with Lawrence High.

Natick High, with Bouret its chief hero, galloped over Wayland, 33 to 0.

YOUNG DONAHUE MAY REFEREE CHICK GO

"YOUNG" DONAHUE will probably be the third man in the ring when Joe Chick, the Gloucester fighter, and Bay Wood of Fall River clash in a fifteen-round whirl at New Bedford next Monday night. Hector McInnis and Eddie Mack, managers of the rival glove men, are both willing to have Donahue officiate, but are opposed to having a New Bedford referee in the ring.

NEW BEDFORD has been a storm centre for boxing managers and the honorable glove men this year. When Al Shubert of New Bedford was given the decision over "Patsy" Brannigan a week ago Monday night, the Pittsburgh featherweight punched the referee. The verdict, it is said, was a poor one.

THE decisions in the Chick-Sweeney and Hartley-Dyson tussles, which were also held in New Bedford, were very crude. Therefore, McInnis and Mack cannot be blamed for objecting to New Bedford referees. Donahue is a competent official and has made a fine showing at the Atlas Club, where he has refereed many important bouts.

GILBERT GALLANT, the Chelsea lightweight, has been matched to meet Frankie Callahan of Brooklyn in a twelve-round bout at the Atlas A. A. on Columbus Day night, October 12.

MATTY BALDWIN has pitched his training camp at Lynnfield where he is preparing for his twelve-round bout with Charley White of Chicago at the Atlas A. A. next Tuesday night. The Charlestown veteran has been doing light work for the past week, but will now do very strenuous boxing and other hard training stunts. Matty claims he has had a good rest since he lost to "Young" Saylor, and he hopes to give the hard-hitting White a surprise.

White will naturally rule a top-heavy favorite in the betting, as none of the New England lightweights have had much success against him. He has stopped Gilbert Gallant, Freddy Yelle and Eddie Murphy. He also knocked out Charley Thomas, while he received a gift of a draw in his tussle here with Saylor.

TED (KID) LEWIS is given a very good rating by fistic lovers in these parts. He is one of the classiest boxers that has shown here for several years and would have a fine chance of defeating Freddy Welsh, the world's lightweight champon.

BOXING RESULTS

PROVIDENCE, Sept. 30.—Jackie Clark of Fall River and Johnny Howard went twelve rounds in a fairly fast no-decision contest. Howard ran up quite an edge on Jackie. In the semi-final, "Billy" Morris of Fall River put it over "Battling" Baum of Newark, N. J., in eight rounds.

MONTREAL, Sept. 30.—Johnny Lore shaded "Knockout" Brown in their ten-round bout at the Canadian A. C.

A THRILLING CRAIG KENNEDY MYSTERY

"The Ear in the Wall"

By ARTHUR B. REEVE

Author of "Elaine"

Miss Blackwell was a slender girl with a mass of chestnut hair, full cheeks and throat, and eyes that fairly danced, even before the humanizing of the camera. She figures in the story.

Copyr't 1915. The Star Co.

"DORGAN—the Boss—has just found a detectaphone in his private dining-room at Gastron's."

It was our old friend, District Attorney Carton, on the wire, in a state of unsuppressed excitement. Kennedy had answered the call himself and the conversation had been brief and, to me, unenlightening.

As Kennedy hung up the receiver, however, and turned to me with the explanation, I saw at once the importance of the news which had aroused the usually imperturbable prosecutor.

Dorgan was the political boss of the city, apparently impregnably intrenched with the "organization." I knew him as a big, bull-necked fellow, taciturn to the point of surliness, owing his influence to his ability to "deliver the goods," but of a type that now is rapidly passing out of public life.

"Carton wants to see us immediately at his office," added Craig, jamming his hat over his head. "Come on."

Without waiting for comment or answer from me, Kennedy, caught by the infectious excitement of Carton, dashed from our apartment.

A few minutes later we were whirling downtown on the subway.

"You know, I suppose," he whispered rather hoarsely above the roar of the car so as not to be overheard, "that Dorgan always keeps a suite of rooms at Gastron's for dinners and conferences."

I nodded. "Some of the things that must have gone on up there would make interesting reading," I commented.

"Apparently he must have found out in time and nipped the thing in the bud," pursued Kennedy.

"What do you mean?" I asked, for I had not been able to gather much from the one-sided conversation over the telephone. "What has he done?"

"Smashed the transmitter of the machine," replied Kennedy, "cut the wires."

"Where did it lead?" I queried.

Kennedy shook his head. Either he did not know yet or he felt that the subway was no place to continue the conversation beyond the mere skeleton that he had given me.

We finished the rest of the ride in comparative silence and hurried into Carton's office down in the Criminal Courts Building.

Carton greeted us cordially, with an air of intense relief as if he were glad to have been able to enlist our services in a matter of more than ordinary perplexity.

Seated beside his desk, in an easy chair, was a striking looking woman, not exactly young, but of an age that is perhaps more interesting than youth.

She, too, I noticed, had a tense, excited expression on her face. As we entered she looked at us searchingly.

"Let me introduce Mr. Kennedy and Mr. Jameson, Mrs. Ogleby," said Carton quickly. "Both of them know as much about how they use these little mechanical eaves-droppers as anyone except the inventor."

We bowed and waited for a further explanation.

"You see," continued Carton slowly to us, "Mrs. Ogleby, who is a friend of Mr. Murtha, Dorgan's right-hand man, naturally does not want her name to appear in the case."

"Oh—it is terrible—terrible," Mrs. Ogleby chimed in in great agitation, "I don't care about anything else—but my reputation—it will be ruined if they connect my name with the case. As soon as I heard of it—I thought of you, Mr. Carton. I came here immediately. There must be some way, Mr. Carton, in which you can protect me—restrain the use of——"

"But, dear Mrs. Ogleby," interrupted the district attorney, "I told you a dozen times I didn't put the detectaphone——"

"Yes, but you will get the record," she persisted excitedly. "Can't you do something?" she pleaded.

I fancied that she said it with the air of one who almost had some right in the matter.

"Mrs. Ogleby," reiterated Carton, "I will do all I can—on my word of honor—to protect your name—but—"

He paused and looked at us helplessly.

"What was it that the instrument reported?" asked Craig, watching her face carefully.

"Why," she replied nervously, "there was a big dinner last night which Mr. Dorgan gave at Gastron's. Mr. Murtha took me and—oh—there were lots of people—" She stopped suddenly.

"Yes," prompted Kennedy. "Who else was there?"

She was on her guard, however. Evidently she had come to Carton for one purpose and that was solely to protect herself against the scandal which she thought might attach to having been present at one of the rather notorious little affairs of the Boss.

"Really," she said, coloring, "I can't tell you. I mustn't say a word about who was there—or anything about it. Good heavens—it is bad enough as it is—to think that my name may be dragged into politics and all sorts of false stories set in motion about me. You must protect me, Mr. Carton, you must."

"How did you find out about the detectaphone?" asked Craig.

"I thought it was just an ordinary little social dinner," she replied, speaking earnestly. "Mr. Murtha told me it was. I didn't think anyone else would be interested in it. But this morning a friend called me up and told me something that made me think that others besides those invited knew of it."

She paused, then resumed. "I began to think it over and the more I thought of it the stranger it seemed that anyone else should know. I began to wonder how it leaked out, for I understand that it was a strictly private affair. I asked Mr. Murtha and he told Mr. Dorgan. Mr. Dorgan at once guessed that there had been something queer. He looked about his rooms there and, sure enough, there was the detectaphone. I can't tell you any more," she added, facing Carton, and using her bewitching eyes to their best advantage. "I can't ask you to shield Mr. Dorgan and Mr. Murtha. They are your opponents. But I have done nothing to you, Mr. Carton. You must suppress—that part of it—about me. Why, it would ruin——"

She cut her words short. But I knew what she meant, and to a certain extent I could understand, if not sympathize with her. Her husband, Martin Ogleby, club man and man about town, had a reputation none too savory. But man-like, I knew he would condone not even the appearance of anything that caused gossip in his wife. I could understand how desperate she felt.

"But, my dear lady," repeated Carton, in a manner that showed that he felt keenly, for some reason or other, the appeal she made to him, "must I say again that I had nothing whatever to do with it? I have sent for Mr. Kennedy and——"

"Nothing—on your honor?" she asked, facing him squarely.

"Nothing—on my honor," he asserted.

She appeared to be dazed. Apparently, all along she had assumed that Carton was the person to see, that he could do something for her, would do something.

Her face paled as she met his frank look. She had risen and now, half chagrined, half frightened, she stood irresolute. Her lip quivered and tears stood in her eyes as she realized that instead of protecting herself she had, perhaps, but made matters worse.

Carton, too, had risen and in a low tone which we could not overhear was trying to reassure her.

In her confusion she was moving toward the door, utterly oblivious, now, to us. Carton tactfully took her arm and led her to a private entrance that opened from his office down the corridor and out of sight of the watchful eyes of the reporters and attendants in the hall.

I did not understand just what was going on, but I could see Kennedy's watchful eye following Carton keenly.

"What was that—a plant?" he asked, still trying to read Carton's face, as he returned to us alone a moment later. "Did she come to see whether you got the record?"

"No—I don't think so," replied Carton quickly. "No—I think that was all—on the level—that part of it."

"But who did put in the instrument really—did you?" asked Kennedy quickly.

"No," exclaimed Carton, this time looking up at us frankly. "No—I wish I had. Why—the fact is, I don't know who did—no one seems to know evidently. But," he added, leaning forward, "I think I could make a shrewd guess."

Kennedy nodded encouragingly. "I think," he continued in the same manner, "that it must have been Langhorne and the Wall Street crowd he represents."

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE; OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

Progressives Should Seek a New Name, if McCall Is One

MR. McCALL'S leading newspaper champion has defended Mr. McCall from the charge of being a reactionary by alleging that Mr. McCall supported the so-called "short ballot."

The McCall champion declares that this is evidence of Mr. McCall's progressivism, because the short ballot was advocated in the recent New York constitutional convention by Elihu Root, "America's greatest statesman." Of course, it follows that Mr. McCall is the kind of a progressive that Mr. Root is.

Here is an interesting comment upon Mr. Root's speech in the constitutional convention by Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, one of the leading progressive Republicans in the country, and one of the most patriotic and noble men this country has produced since Lincoln. La Follette in his magazine quotes the Root speech, and comments as follows:

> "'I don't criticise the men in the invisible government. How can I? I have known them all, and among them have been some of my dearest friends.'
> "Here is first-hand testimony. ROOT knows. He has been a conspicuous part of this system that has undermined representative government and betrayed the public interest. But what restitution is ROOT going to make to the public for his own life-long service to the "invisible government" that has filched the people's government and their opportunities from them?"

We will not quarrel with Mr. McCall's friends over names, so long as people know what is meant by the particular name applied. If Mr. McCall's friends want him to be known as the kind of a progressive that Mr. Root is, we are content. It is certain, however, that if this definition of the word "progressive" should prevail, every other progressive in Massachusetts would hasten to call himself by some other name.

The Credit Union System Is an Excellent Thing; Look Into It

A LARGE number of our able and well-disposed citizens have been giving, without hope of material reward, much of their time in building up the CREDIT UNION SYSTEM in Massachusetts.

If our people all understood the object of the Credit Union plan and its results in Canada, Europe, India and wherever it has received favorable trial, there would be no doubt of its rapid success in this Commonwealth.

The chief object of the Credit Union System is to supply to people who, for temporary reasons, need the assistance of money, what they need at interest which is not usurious and on security which the ordinary banks will not accept. Therefore, it undertakes to lend worthy people, under proper conditions, money which the banks will not lend them at lower rates of interest than the ordinary money lenders are willing to take.

But this is not the only object of the Credit Union, nor indeed will this be the chief benefit of the system to the people. Its object being to help without profit and without charity, its organization will be enabled to render incidental assistance to those who join it, which, in many cases, will be greater than the lending of money.

Working men and, in fact, all who have not accumulated an independence, would do well to look into this interesting organization. Those who join it, not for the purpose of borrowing money, but as they take out life insurance or as they make a deposit in the savings bank as a provision against the hazards of the future, will be wise.

Once-Overs

Life is much more enjoyable if we rejoice with those who are advancing instead of envying them their good fortune.

We must expect others are going to have things which cannot come to us, but if their good fortune is a thorn in our flesh we are bound to suffer for our mean and envious thoughts, and at the same time we cannot take anything from the comfort and glory which they may have.

Under such circumstances how foolish to torture our own minds with mean thoughts unworthy of God's children.

When the distinction and affluence which comes to our friends makes us happier from the knowledge of it, then are our own chances greater for getting the good things of life, for joy and generosity return in kind.

Be selfish enough to wish all the good you can for your fellow men and get all the more happiness for yourself. The dividends are sure.

Stars and Stripes

Indiana apparently elects mayors for two terms—one in office and one in jail.

John D. is now able to eat anything he wants, showing he is in sound financial health.

Wife, "pinched to a shadow," blames poverty in the form of a husband.

Serbia and Turkey both having decorated John D., he doesn't know whose ally he is.

The United States Must Lead the World to Industrial Democracy

By Scott Nearing

MODERN organized industry, which has so greatly increased our national wealth, produces both poverty and riches, and since they are equally inimical to the best results, the system must be at fault.

Our forefathers decided that the divine right of kings doctrine was a fizzle. They overthrew the existing organization of society and instituted a system of government founded on the proposition that all men should have equal opportunity. That is the essence of our democracy. Then politics was supreme; now industry is supreme.

Then democracy in politics was the all important thing; now democracy in politics without democracy in industry is the apotheosis of futility, because the ruling power is in the hands of industrial rulers.

Our forefathers resented a system of society in which all of the productive land of the community was held by a few rich men.

Equal Rights—For a While

When we revolted we decided that each man should have equal property rights.

The system worked admirably while the country was young. As long as there was forest land, coal land and agricultural land to spare, your boy could go out, take to himself a piece of property and work out his own ability.

Then, in the latter part of the nineteenth century, that domain was exhausted, and the boy found that the timber and iron and coal lands were all appropriated. And their owners said: "If you want a piece of this property, pay for it."

The only way in which a man can make his living is to work for those individuals. The newcomers must serve the land owners unless they can themselves become land owners. The struggle of industrial democracy today is the struggle, on the one hand, between the people who possess the property of the community and the great majority, who do not possess land, on the other.

The Evolution of Industry

The vested interests have gone through a very interesting cycle. In the first place, they built up industrial units—the factories. Then the man who owned one factory reached out and got another, three, four; then reached back and got possession of the markets, perfecting a completely integrated industry. When that was completed we had the unit in the present industrial order—the trust. Then came the third move. The masters of industry were no longer masters of industry. The individuals who worked out a trust were no longer leaders unless they reached out and got this or that trust and brought them together under one financial administration. There is the great unit of industry.

Twenty years ago, when men like Bryan and La Follette began to talk about government and industry, men laughed. Then we had the insurance investigation and others, and the fact gradually reached us that the industrial powers had reached out and controlled the government by buying the bosses. The politician does not bribe; it is too crude, too inefficient. He goes to the Legislature and pulls wires, and the bill does not pass. And then, when popular opinion demands an explanation, a Public Service Commission comes out—a commission that is neither public nor service, but a corporation. The corporations hire the best brains in the community, because it is through the best brains that they can control the machinery of government. It isn't through bribing, but through the more subtle methods of employment, retainer fees, social pressure where it will do the most good, that brings men into line.

Industry has won its first point; it is losing its second—the control over government. Now we have the conflict over the third citadel—public opinion. If they can keep their control over that they can regain the second citadel. So we have foundations for educational purposes; we have newspapers and magazines, long chains of them, controlled by corporations. We have the advertisers so lined up that the corporations dictate what shall go into the newspapers. They are in control, and the centre of the quarrel today is over the control of public men.

They have the lawyers well lined up, because they have been taught the rule of precedent. They have been working on the ministers—have been paying their salaries—and our churches today are going where the money is.

Yet they have got to reckon with the younger type of minister, who is telling the truth, and is losing his job for telling it.

Young men in our colleges and pulpits and many of our younger lawyers are realizing that it is better to be right than to make a good living, and the conflict over the control of public opinion is the telling conflict of the hour.

Worse Than Feudal System

But the wealth power must not win. First, we must realize that the present industrial system has grown to be as hurtful to mankind as was the feudal system.

Second, we must realize that rulership, then as now, goes with the control of productive property.

Third, realize that the vitalizing, loving, governing force in the world's affairs is not politics, but industry.

In the fourth place, follow the examples of our forefathers. Apply the simplest, most elementary principles of democracy to the control of industry.

The power of capital today is the power of one class to live off the other without rendering any service—to live in idleness and luxury and ease in the face of starvation for others. Furthermore, the common welfare is of greater moment than the interest of any individual group or class. We are not represented in the government of our industry; we must decide whether government is going to be a government of property owners or of the people of the United States. The deciding voice in industrial control must be the voice of the people.

Must Start in Homes

You will have to do it in your homes; there teach that the principles of justice and truth are as applicable to industry as to everything else. Then do it in your schools, the citadels of democracy.

Private wealth has been able to control political parties and the church; let it not control the schools. The schools must not take a dollar from any private donor. There must be no educational donations save the tax which all the people pay. They have put the college professors on the pension list—they have got the old fellow—but the young professors are not so interested in pensions. But so long as you have your college presidents and your college professors on the payroll of corporation foundations you will have the policies of your higher institutions of learning dictated by those corporation interests.

As we stand beside this European cataclysm we can see that to go on fighting for foreign markets, with hungry mouths at home, will bring us to the same end.

Among the nations we alone are free—we stand as the leader in democracy. The time has come when we can take a new step—when we can set a new ideal before the world. Our slogan shall be government and industry under the control of the people. We are at the parting of the ways. We cured the world's standard in the eighteenth century; can we do it in the twentieth? We led toward brotherhood once; can we do it again?

Flashes on the Screen

By S. E. Kiser

HARD

NEVER go to meet a sorrow
That will wait until tomorrow,
Never worry over troubles that are past;
If you fill your mouth with mustard,
Having thought that it was custard,
Do not let yourself be flustered,
But be happy in the knowledge
That the smarting cannot last.

IT is foolish to be saddened
When we might as well be gladdened,
And have freedom from imaginary cares;
But it's hard to see the folly
Of becoming melancholy—
Hard, indeed, to still be jolly
When, at night, one steals in softly,
And then stumbles on the stairs.

Poor Woman!

"Men don't half appreciate the sacrifices women make for them," she complained.

"What sacrifices have you ever made for me?" he asked.

"You used to call a taxi whenever you wanted to take me anywhere, but you couldn't be satisfied until you married me. Now you can't afford to take me in anything better than a street car."

Simple

You and Mr. Gadsby seemed to get on very well together this evening. The other girls all think him a bear. How did you manage it?"

"Oh, it was easy enough. I helped him to talk about himself."

Even the most cynical man likes a girl who finds it possible occasionally to be shocked at something.

Too many people claim to have the desire for information when the trouble is morbid curiosity.

Approves Protest Against Loan

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—I desire to express unqualified approval of the timely, patriotic and logical protest of Mr. W. R. Hearst against the unwarranted conduct of Anglo-American bank officials and financial syndicates, headed by the financially unscrupulous J. P. Morgan, in their subserving efforts to loan a billion dollars from the earnings of the American people, in absolute defiance of their wishes, for the solitary purpose of continuing the dastardly slaughter of men, women and children in the most appalling and bloodthirsty war of all time.

It is inconceivable how American citizens professing to be moral, Christian men can become imbued with such an unholy and ungodly greed for money as to prostitute every principle of their American manhood at the feet of Mammon.

On September 21, the Chancellor of the Exchequer stated in the House of Commons that "the estimated revenue for the current year would be 272,000,000 pounds, or about $1,350,000,000, and that the dead weight of debt on March 31, 1916, the close of the financial year, would be 2,200,000,000 pounds, or about $11,000,000,000," therefore, the above statement from the Chancellor of the Exchequer ought to be convincing evidence that from a business standpoint a loan of such magnitude is not only serious but also dangerous. Such a loan will be morally wrong because it will enable the war lords to continue the wanton destruction and slaughter of their fellowmen, whom God created for a higher and nobler purpose.

Such a loan will be cruelly wrong from the standpoint of honest neutrality as formally called for by President Wilson.

It will be cruelly wrong from the standpoint of fair play from the American people to the belligerent nations of Europe.

It will be cruelly wrong because it will be steeped and stained in the blood of the innocent, and thus a lasting disgrace to the American people.

It will be cruelly and morally wrong because it will be a dangerous gamble with the money of the American people that does not belong to Morgan or his hirelings.

It will be morally wrong because the loan will necessitate continued loans to secure it and in all probability will eventually involve the United States in international difficulty.

The deceitful statements that the loan will serve the best interests of the United States is an insult to the intelligence of the American people, notwithstanding its issue from representative banks of the Bank of England in Boston and New York.

The patriotic protest, foresight and wisdom of Mr. W. R. Hearst on the Anglo-French loan will shine resplendent in American history compared with the insatiate greed and sordid ambition of J. P. Morgan and his Anglo-American kings of finance.

The Way to Eden

By Clarence Porter Crane

I LOST the way to Eden; oh, the way lay fair to trace—
I left my guide a-standing in old Yarrow's market place.

Her eyes they held the mirage of Elysium where we fared,
But I went thimble-rigging, where the gypsies' torches flared.

The stained dawn led me further to forget, and then regret,
But Yarrow's square was empty when the second sun had set.

Perchance the way to Eden lies across the waste land, west,
Perchance by dreamland rose paths where the woodlands whisper rest.

But scent of Summer leafage and the murmur of the sea,
Or Eden, with its glory never more may call to me.

I'm waiting at the crossways, where the highroads pause for grace,
For heart's desire that wandered from old Yarrow's market place.
